HORSESHOW HEADGEAR

Although horsemen are frequently called bull headed, block headed and hard headed, they are actually just as vulnerable in that portion of their anatomy as any of their fellow sportsmen in other fields. Race track officials are thoroughly aware of this. At all the major tracks jockeys are required to wear an approved type of protective headgear. Since these regulations have been in effect, the percentage of serious accidents has consequently decreased at a most gratifying rate.

Unfortunately these highly essential precautions are often neglected in other branches of equestrian sport. Broken legs, arms and collar bones are a nuisance, but in nine cases out of ten they can be made as good as new. A fractured skull or a bad concussion is a lifelong disability, however. So also are mild concussions that are neglected. No one needs to have his head examined more than the horsemen who falls on it and persists in carrying on as though nothing had happened. If he fails to go to bed and keep quiet for a few days, the chances are that blood clots on the lining of the brain resulting from his fall will fail to dissolve, leaving permanent scars that will cause headaches and other disturbances for the rest of his days.

A salesman at one of the largest saddlers in the country recently cited experiences with fond parents who, having bought little Susie a high priced hunter pony, then come in for a show ring outfit to match. There is great discussion as to the type, fit and color of coat, breeches and boots, to say nothing of accessories, but in a surprisingly large number of cases a hunting cap or bowler, which should be the first item on the list, is not even on it.

At the end of the scale, opposite from the race track, we have the U. S. Pony Clubs who also insist that their members wear a hard hat or cap. There is certainly no reason why associations and governing bodies of other horse sports should not impose similar requirements. The American Horse Shows Association, for example, could specify hunting caps, bowlers and top hats in all hunter, hunter pony, hunter seat and U. S. E. T. Medal classes, and some type of protective headgear in all open hunter jumper and F. E. I. classes. What could be more shocking than a bad preventable head injury in front of a show ring audience. Individual organising and show committees should also include these provisions in their prize lists.

The great majority of the best riders in the world protect their heads whenever they get on a horse even in the manege or when hacking quietly for short distances. As for the bad and indifferent riders who are too ignorant or too lazy to do so, we shall have to protect them against themselves.

Moved

Dear Sir:

I would like to bring to the attention of our fellow breeders and Welsh Pony folks that Caper Hill Inc. has moved from Norfolk, Conn. to a bigger and better Farm right in the centre of the Far Hills Hunting Country, and since our arrival, April 6th, 1959, we have been blessed with three very nice filly foals and one colt foal, and expect four more in the near future.

We are also expecting the arrival from England and Wales of a new string of ponies, I hope, by the end of this month.

We will welcome anybody who wishes to look around the farm and to see the ponies.

By the look of the pastures we will have no grazing problems this year for we have over 100 acres of lush grass, mostly Kentucky Blue. So you see we are very lucky.

We wish all show secretaries to send us particulars.

Thank you sir for trying to find space to put the above into.

Yours faithfully,
Arthur H. Robinson

The Ninth Race

(EDITOR'S NOTE: - Bayard Tuckerman, Jr. recently sent us a copy of the following letter which he wrote to Mr. George D. Widener, Chairman of the Jockey Club.)
Dear Sir:

As an inevitable result of adding a 9th race to the program an order went out on the opening day at Belmont Park to eliminate the walking ring except for the feature race. You were a party to rescinding this order, to your everlasting credit.

Other tracks, due to lack of time because they have put on 8, 9 and 10 races, have eliminated the walking ring. Others have not even bothered to put in a walking ring, because business was so

You've Got To Know The Language

Raleigh Burroughs

In this era of cynicism, when people merely shrug at malpractice in office and joke about patriotism, there is little respect left for the English language.

Plural verbs are used with singular nouns, infinitives are fractured without apology and a preposition is considered just the thing to end a sentence with.

An acquaintance of mine, who is very pure - in some ways - is dreadfully disturbed about the general looseness allowed in the application of the fundamentals of grammar, and is even more upset about what is happening to our words.

"Look what they've done to 'nominal'," he points out. "Nominal" means 'pertaining to name', but once somebody said something about 'a nominal sum', meaning a trifling payment just so it could be said that a payment has been made. Now practically any small amount is called a 'nominal sum.' Even the dictionaries go along with this. Literally, a 'nominal sum' could be a hundred thousand dollars.

"And that brings me to 'literally', and the dictionaries do not give license to use this word as some of the lads are using it. I read the other day that a horse was 'literally flying'. Only Pegasus could do that. 'Literal' means 'according to the letter; hence true to the fact; not exaggerated.' So no one should say that a horse is literally flying, unless the animal is in a plane."

The vernacular of sport distressed the pure one.

"When a writer says a horse 'flattened out in the drive,' I writhe. I think of those pasteboard 'cut-outs' they display in drugstore windows - and worms that can make themselves short and fat or long and thin to meet circumstances.

"'Flatten' means to render or become flatter. And how about this one? It says the horse 'went to pieces' in the last furlong. What a horribly gruesome thought!"

It was obvious that the fellow's imagination was causing him to abandon logical thinking.

"To 'flatten out,'" he was told, "simply means to tire and lose the ability to gain."

"Then why don't they say it in so many words?" demanded the critic of Turf talk.

"Like what?"

"Why, just say that the arc of deceleration declined with greater expedition than the normal, expected fatigue curve."

"Oh," I said, which shut HIM up, but the conversation got me thinking.

How many people are stumbling through a labyrinth of mistaken impressions, haunted by paper-thin and exploding horses.

Many words, sentences and paragraphs heard on, around or about the racetrack, when correctly interpreted mean nothing like the same words, or groups of words as defined by Noah Webster.

There is no key, nor Thesaurus, to guide the uninitiated. As in Chinese, you have to know every character. You also have to know the character who delivers the word, sentence or paragraph to be able to translate accurately.

Take, for instance, the un-complex announcement: "We have decided to add a ninth race, as we feel the public wants it."

That seems to be easily understandable, but it's a tricky one. The first eight words, in literal translation or in Turf idiom, mean exactly the same, but the modifying clause requires interpretation.

Loosely, it translates, "Play has fallen off to beat hell, and we need another crack at the customers' bankrolls."

If a horse-owner states, "The weights for the handicap are fair and equitable," the meaning may be translated two ways:

(a) The man has no horse in the race;

(b) The handicapper has pulled a terrific bloomer and given the gentleman's horse an impost 15 pounds too light.

"Extensive improvements have been made about the plant," is perhaps the most difficult of all declarations to decipher accurately. It may mean anything from a complete rebuilding of the place to rubbing out the telephone numbers on the rest room walls.

"I'm only gonna bet two bucks per race," is idiomatic and every racegoer of any experience will recognize the meaning at once, viz., "I'm only gonna bet two bucks per race UNLESS (a) I'm ahead, (b) behind, or (c) even, when the fifth race comes up."

Jockeys sometimes give utterance to cryptic expressions that deceive any but the closest students of the language.

"The inside horse came out on me and the outside one came in," sounds like a true tale of misfortune until you read the translation - "Like a dummy, I run into a blind switch."

Stewards, too, "We have examined the motion pictures and find no evidence of foul."

Translation: "It was one of those things you could decide one way or the other. So we flipped a coin."

Trainer (whose horse is on the vet's list): "Honest, Doc, he's never taken a lame step in his life."

Translation: "For heaven's sake don't look at his ankles."

Veterinarian: "I have gone over this horse from hoof to poll and find . . ." etc.

Translation: "The reporter on the Evening Sun says the bum's a cripple, and that's good enough for me."

The brief compendium given here doesn't even scratch the surface. It is suggested that earnest students of Turfese purchase a morocco-bound notebook and jot down the translations and add from time to time as they learn others.

Someday, perhaps, The Jockey Club will make up a Junior Classic Turf-English Dictionary. The Jockey Club wrote the rules of racing, remember.

Parthia Wins The Derby

Peter Towers-Clark

In the richest-ever of the 180 runnings of the Derby, that fickle young lady Luck today at last smiled on Sir Humphrey de Trafford and his trainer Cecil Boyd Rochfort. After an association that has lasted for almost forty years, during which time the owner of Freemason Lodge has sent out the winners of more than a million pounds in stakes for his patrons and won every other important race in the Calendar, the Derby has always eluded "The Captain", and until last year Sir Humphrey has never had a real Classic contender.

Then last year, after a twelve lengths victory in the Derby Trial, it really did seem that de Trafford and Boyd Rochfort would at last attain the great goal with Alcide, only for the horse to pull a muscle and have to miss the race. And when he went on to win the St Leger by eight lengths, few of us doubted that Alcide would have beaten Hard Ridden had he been in the Epsom field.

And on this year's running the Ascot Gold Cup looks to be at the mercy of Alcide. Then on the eve of the Derby comes news that the horse has struck a joint and may also have to miss Ascot.

But this afternoon in glorious sunshine the Fates at last relented and Alcide's near-relative Parthia (b.c. by Persian Gulf—Lightning, by Hyperion) stormed home in the scarlet and white quarters to win by a length and a half from another English-trained colt, Fidalgo (b.c. by Arctic Star—Miss France), with two French horses, Shantung and Saint Crespin, in a photo finish for third money of 2,134 pounds the same distance away. And many will say that Sir Humphrey's luck was in, for Shantung met with so much interference early on in the race that he was last of all at Tattenham Corner and then made up twenty lengths or so, to fail by only three. But who can say whether the supremely indolent Parthia, who would make a race of it with the starter's hack, would not have been able to pull out more if Shantung had got to him?

With running fees and the added money both doubled, this year's Derby was worth 36,078 pounds and once again took its rightful place as the most valuable race of the year.

Open Race

It was also one of the most open for many years, for on the morning of the race seven horses, four from France and three from England, were all quoted in the betting from 7-1 to 10-1. For two months Tulyar's half-brother Saint Crespin had held the position of future book favorite, only to be displaced a week before the race by his stable companion Princillon when Prince Aly Khan let it be known that the son of Aureole had been suffering from stomach trouble. Parthia had for long held his place as second choice but he too had rather drifted from esteem twelve days previously after winning the Derby Trial by only three-quarters of a length from the moderate Casque; a very lazy colt who is unbeaten this year, almost every one except jockey Harry Carr got deceived that day.

But it was the French colt Shantung, ridden by Freddy Palmer who won the race in 1955 on Phil Drake, that every one seemed to want to back on the day, and he finally came in from 9-1 to start a hot favorite at 11-2.

Twenty Starters

A vast crowd which seemed bigger than ever were on the Downs on a really beautiful summer's day, though the course was riding rather firm. The Queen and other members of the Royal Family were there to make it a Royal occasion and came to the paddock to see her colt Above Suspicion saddled.

At the first attempt the twenty runners were sent on their way, Saint Crespin, pulling hard for his head, being one of the first to show up before Breasley was able to get him to settle down, and after a quarter of a mile the leaders of a closely-bunched field were Lindrick, Rousseau's Dream and Fidalgo, with Parthia tracking the last named. The pace was only a moderate one.

At about the mile gate Princillon tried to jump a path across the track and it seems that Shantung ran up onto him. At first Palmer thought that his colt had broken his leg and dropped him right out to last place but as all seemed to be well he let him go on. At the top of the hill

THE CHRONICLE

Rousseau's Dream and Josephus, both colts by Tulyar, were ahead of Lindrick, Fidalgo, Arvak and Parthia, with New Brig, Princillon and Thymus all well placed, but Above Suspicion and American-owned Dan Cupid met with some interference and lost ground. There was little change in the order down the hill, and as they swung round Tattenham Corner, Rousseau's Dream, Josephus and Lindrick were all in line in front of Arvak and Fidalgo, with Carr on Parthia still tracking the last-named.

A Two Horse Race At Finish

Once in the straight the outsiders began to give way and just inside the three furlong pole Joe Mercer suddenly swept Fidalgo into a three lengths lead. For just a few moments it seemed that he must win until Parthia came up to him with a quarter of a mile to go, and from then on it was really just a two horse race.

Slowly but resolutely over the last quarter of a mile Parthia forged ahead, to pass the post to the most tremendous ovation a length and a half to the good. Behind on the outside Shantung, who had still been a clear last at Tattenham Corner, started a great run that must have made up twenty lengths. Another length and a half behind Fidalgo Saint Crespin on the rails, Above Suspicion and Shantung fought out third place, the last-named just getting up in the last stride to beat Saint Crespin by a head after Above Suspicion had failed to last out the final hundred yards.

Naturally, there were many who considered that Shantung was a most unlucky loser. Had he not met with the bad luck early in the race, it might well have been a great race with Parthia, but so dogged and lazy is the winner that I for one am not at all sure that he would not have

Steeplechasing At Belmont

John E. Cooper

The fourth and final week of 'chasing at Belmont was highlighted by the inaugural running of The Annapolis, a mile and a half test for three-year-old hurdlers with $10,000 added. It drew a field of ten and resulted in the third consecutive victory of the meeting for F. Eugene Dixon, Jr.'s Air Delight, a Virginia-bred son of Air Hero from the *Easton mare, Enjoyment. Under a cleverly judged ride from Jimmy Hobales, Air Delight was held off the pace for the first half of the race, then was sent into contention midway down the far side to engage Charkitt Stables' Brannagh, which had cut out most of the pace. Around the final turn and into the homestretch, Brannagh on the inside had the best of it, but Hobales steered his mount to the middle of the last jump, landed running, and overhauled the Irish-bred on the run-in on the flat to score by a widening two and a half lengths. Brannagh was clearly the best of the others after a bold bid by Bayard Tuckerman, Jr.'s Cornhill fell short in the last eighth. Two lengths behind that one, the D. M. Smithwick-trained entry of Mrs. Ogden Phipps' Management and Mrs. June McKnight's Mighty Lea, fought it out for the minor share of the money with a thin nose separating them in the order named.

After arriving at the post in the Annapolis, a short delay occurred while the starter tightened the girth on Walter Wickes, Jr.'s After Supper, the only filly in the race. Rounding into the far side, after going about five eighths, the saddle slipped again and Daniel Delaunay was unloaded at the fourth hurdle. The filly, making her second start over jumps, was running well up at the time, and off her previous start, when she closed strongly at the end, could well have been an important factor in the Annapolis. As it was, running loose, she bothered several of the field, and affected their chances.

Worth approximately $7,500 to the winner, Air Delight took 2:46 4/5 to complete the distance over footing that was still on the soft side from recent rains.

The Annapolis was the third race at the meeting for three-year-old hurdlers. It was very gratifying to those who have advocated this type of program, and which has received increasing support over the past few years. It is interesting to note that the two largest wagering pools of the meeting, jumpingwise, were $192,036 on The Annapolis, and $190,859 on the hurdle race on May 25 which was also for three-year-olds.

A series of upsets marked the jumping races earlier in the week. On Monday in a two and an eighth mile brush prep for the Tom Roby at Delaware Park, the highly thought of Gridiron was defeated by John M. Schiff's *Duc de Richmond. The latter, a four-year-old, ran and jumped well all the way under Scottie Schulhofer, and after engaging Gridiron over the last fence and in the run-in, drew off to a length and a half victory. Gridiron was ridden by Eddie Deveau, and could have been too well used in setting a fast pace up to this point. In any event, in the last half mile, the race narrowed down to these two, with the show position going to May Rumsey's *Romeo, which lay well out of it for about a mile and a half, and then passed tired horses, finishing fifteen lengths behind Gridiron. Rotal ran an even race to be fourth some lengths further back.

The following day, Mrs. Arthur White's aptly named Eternal Son, now an eleven-year-old, forgot his age, and ran and jumped over two miles and 11 hurdles the way he did some years ago. Getting to the front at once, he and Scottie Riles never looked back, and won easily by seven lengths at the rather healthy odds of 33 to 1. Highland Light, the favorite, had no trouble for the place, being four lengths in front of Navy Fighter with *St. Phideas another three lengths away for fourth. Officially credited to trainer Arthur White, who is recuperating from an operation, Eternal Son was saddled by Ridgeley White.

On Wednesday, Randolph D. Rouse

came up from Washington to see Joe Aitcheson guide his Gokey across the finish line a dozen lengths to the fore of *Brendan. *Double French, the favorite, was a well beaten third ten lengths away with Close Array in fourth position in this mile and seven eighths test for hurdlers under claiming conditions. In the unsaddling enclosure following the race, Gokey shared the crowd's admiration with a very attractive girl in the winner's party.

On Friday, June 5th, the final jumping race of the Belmont season developed into a close finish, and a claim of foul against the winner, C. Mahlon Kline's *Bugle Call 2nd, ridden by Eddie Deveau. At the last fence, running head and head were Parapet on the inside, and the eventual winner outside him. The correct course to the wire from this point is an oblique one to the right and outside of the odds-board. It appeared that Deveau rode Schulhofer very close, and with no room on his left, Deveau used his whip righthandedly. This only made the pinch a little tighter, and although Schulhofer did not have to "stop riding" neither he nor Parapet were able to fully extend themselves. After a lengthy deliberation, the Stewards disallowed the claim, although it was a borderline case. Behind these two, Caught and *Esteco 2nd shared the small end of the

Kentucky Hunt And Steeplechase Race Meet

Carter W. Brown

Once again the Oxmoor hunt races were held on the beautiful Bullitt estate, "Oxmoor", on the outskirts of Louisville. This year, the fifteenth meeting for this popular fixture, the weather was a little too warm, but the often experienced rain was absent. The date was Saturday, May 30.

The United Hunts Racing Association very generously sent its new mobile photofinish unit out for the meeting. The unit not only provides immediate photofinish service, having its own complete laboratory and camera, but also the top serves as a stand for officials and in addition the attractive trailer contains a comfortable lounge and wash room facilities.

With only four starters named, two of which were cross-entered and declared to run in other races, The Colonel flat race was cancelled from the program, leaving only three sanctioned races. First of these was the about-two-mile Glenview over brush and it brought out a field of seven novice jumpers. Five of these were making their first start over obstacles, primarily to qualify for the forthcoming River Downs Hurdle Handicap to be run July 12.

First away from Howard Tilson's flag was owner-rider William Fortner on Miss Inquisitive. Both horse and rider were making their first start and after leading over the first three fences they dropped back to fourth position, met the sixth fence wrong and fell. "Bunny" Meister on H. M. Rhett's Pretty Free had taken over at the fourth brush with ease and going faultlessly from there on in was never threatened, winning by ten lengths from Dennis Murphy's Flight Annee. This one, another first-timer over fences, had never been worse than third and at the wire was a full twenty lengths to the good of the third horse, Baron Ford, likewise a first-timer. The only other finisher was the pre-race favorite and winner of The Frost at Nashville three weeks earlier, Don's Gold. He was badly tailed off, but understandably since he finished very sore and with a possible bowed tendon. He had shown little inclination to run after the first fence. "Merecido" propped badly at his fences and "Laddy" Murray, after persevering with him for nine fences and being hopelessly beaten, pulled up. Gray Bossman, who completed the field, refused the fifth fence while out of contention. It should be mentioned that Pretty Free was "Bunny" Meister's third consecutive winning mount over fences on the circuit.

Timber Race

Only four came out for The Beargrass at about three miles over timber and two of these had their chances spoiled at the second fence. Going head and head Jamaica Boy and Litigate both hit the fence and fell. Ned Bonnie held onto his reins and remounted Litigate but "Bunny" Meister was not so fortunate, being badly shaken up and suffering facial bruises. Charlie Brown, who was third when the accident occurred, showed more liking for the task at hand than he had in his initial start three weeks before and assuming the pace setting duties was never threatened, winning from Louis Prince on his own Bunbeg by some fifty lengths. Another twelve lengths back came the remounted Litigate, having made up a tremendous amount of ground.

Oxmoor Steeplechase

The featured Oxmoor Steeplechase at

THE CHRONICLE

two and a half miles brought out only four starters. Much interest was centered around P. T. Cheff's Tuna Pal who had been such a good second his very first time out and was making his second start in this one. Unfortunately, while showing the way at the second fence, he made a tremendous leap and thoroughly lost his rider, C. C. Adams. This mishap painlessly put Alan Dufton on "Another Hyacinth" in the lead, a spot they maintained by a slim margin for the remainder of the running. "Laddy" Murray on Here's Why did a masterful job of keeping his mount on near-even terms with the winner, driving him up on the inside last time around, but the effort was too much for the veteran chaser and in the final stages he gave way to "Orestes Kid". The latter finished well and got to within a length and three-quarters of the winner at the finish with Here's Why another four lengths back.

The unsanctioned Oldham County team race run over the timber course at a distance of about two and one half miles was, as usual, interesting event. The teams are composed of two gentlemen and one lady each and this year three teams competed. The ladies all start together and are followed about three fences by the gentlemen, so that you get two races in one. The white-shirted team composed of Miss Sally Spalding, Judge Roscoe Dalton and Stuart Dalton were the winners with a total of fifty points gained through a win by Judge Dalton, a second by Miss Spalding and a fourth by Stuart Dalton.

Miss Nonnie Steer on her own Sir Winston scored a victory in the ladies division for the green team. This together with a second scored by John Clippinger and a fifth by Howard Carlisle put this team second with forty points. The third team was composed of Miss Bonnie Embry, Clarence Short and Harry Castleman. Miss Embry took a spill at the next to last fence when her tack slipped but made a game display by remounting when her mount was finally caught and eventually finishing the course.

Two races for children completed the day. The first was won by Mason Lamp-ton on his own pony, Badness, in a close finish over Lucy Sonntag on Smokey and Bobby Davis on Little Chief Pontiac. The other race for children with larger ponies was won by Larry Lotze on Tina with "Porkey" Monroe on Stormy second and George Gowin on Trigger third.

KEENELAND SALES

William S. Evans, general manager of the Breeders' Sales Company, announced that 315 yearlings representing 101 consignors will be catalogued for the Keeneland Summer Sales of July 27-29.

Afternoon and evening sessions will be conducted on each of the three days of the auction. An average of 52 yearlings will be sold at the afternoon sessions and an average of 53 will go through the ring each evening.

Of the 315 yearlings, 170 are colts and 145 are fillies.

Last year, 357 youngsters brought $3,432,600 for an average of $9,615.

Leslie Combs II and son, Leslie B. Combs II, have the largest representation in the sale with 33 yearlings being catalogued. Maine Chance Farm will sell 21 youngsters; Warner L. Jones, Jr., 11; and Duval A. Headley, Runnymede Farm, and Stoner Creek Stud, each 10.

With nine yearlings each are Hidden-away Farm, Hurstland Farm and J. C. Metz. With eight representatives is Forest Retreat Farm, while Karsland Farm and the Estate of Henry H. Knight will each sell seven.

Hedgewood Farm and the Estate of R. W. McIlvain each have six yearlings to be auctioned.

With five each are seven consignors - Patrick Calhoun, Jr., Charlton Clay, Ira Drymon, John W. Greathouse, Thomas Piatt, Reno B. Renfrew and Dr. and Mrs. R. Smizer West.

Seven consignors each will have four yearlings in the sale - Ned W. Brent, Henry J. Damm, James D. Drymon, T. A. Grissom, Palmeadow Stock Farms, E. K. Thomas, and White Oaks Farm.

BIG WIN FOR AMBASSADOR WHITNEY

British Ambassador Mr. "Jock" Whitney must have received a nice surprise at Geneva when the news came through that his four year old Persian Road had won the valuable Manchester Cup worth 2,248 pounds. The Cup was received on his behalf by his trainer, Jeremy Tree.

A 14-1 chance in a field of twelve for this mile and a half event, Persian Road took up the running two and a half furlongs from home and went on to win very comfortably by three lengths.

By Persian Gulf out of the *Watling Street mare One for the Road, Persian Road had been obtained as a yearling for 2000 guineas and was scoring for the third time.

WATERFORD'S OLD TIMERS

Waterford Park may not be able to boast of a 46-year-old horse although one did live until that age, and was active up until he was 41 - but when the summer racing season got underway June 17 there were several hardy old-timers on hand, aged 10, 11 and even 12.

The group of oldsters at the West Virginia track is a hard hitting bunch, judging from last year's efforts, their speed still untarnished despite the encroachment of the years. Most successful were the 10-year-old Ultimatum, a winner of six races for Mrs. Ralph LaPlant, and Joseph Scanlalto's John Alden, a gleaner of four races despite his decade of years. Other ten-year-olds are Red and Yellow, Steel, Screentest and Miami, all winners; the 11-year-olds The Veep, Monte Pride, Jofin and Rissa's Son, and the 12-year-old Welcome, a winner of two races last season for P. L. Rice of West Jefferson.

Although the racing of aged horses is not as prevalent as it was at an earlier time, there are more than a few ancient performing countrywide. Last year the 12-year-old Appease Not went into American racing records as the leader of his division with earnings of $7,437 and three victories, proof positive that age is not always a drawback to a race horse. That was indubitably proven with Hickory Jim, who was supposedly foaled in 1867 and came out of the fable-crammed west in the late 1870's to tackle opponents at recognized tracks. His last recorded win was at New Jersey's Guttenberg at 24 years of age!

SWELLEST SWILL

I have eaten Baked Alaska and frozen strawberries when they're out of season, but until I visited Delaware Park with its new clubhouse and facilities, I never saw or heard of refrigerated garbage.

The garbage at Delaware Park which is a by-product of the H. M. Stevens Catering operations is kept (oddly enough) in garbage cans which, in turn, are stored in a refrigerated room until they are hauled away. This may sound silly, but if you get enough garbage together in hot weather, it doesn't create the most refreshing type of atmosphere.

I never could find out what they do with the stuff after it is refrigerated and then hauled away. It might be cooling and pleasant for swine, but I should think it would give them tummy aches being so cold.

WATERFORD HEATH

The modern, comfortable Waterford Park grandstand and clubhouse, appointed with all possible conveniences for the visitor during the June 17 - August 8 racing season, would be a revelation to the racegoer of the 17th and 18th century - the official starting point of recorded racing - who did not even have the accommodation of a grandstand. With the exception of the country people, who were generally afoot, racing in that bygone era was viewed from horseback or from carriages. Since there were no admissions, and no source of revenue, the prizes offered by the tracks were usually the result of private stakes. Later, in order to assist in the improvement of the breed of horses, the government put up a series of "king's plates." The races were run for the most part over heathland or commons, where adjoining villagers had pasture rights, with stakes marking the course. A rope stretched from stake to stake at the finish was the forerunner of the inside and outside rails which now surround Waterford Park and all modern day race tracks.

DRIP DRY TRACK

A new drainage system plus the use of a special glacial soil discovered nearby has made the Washington Park Track, near Chicago, one of the fastest drying strips in the country.

MINUTE SAVING

Speed these days seems to be the watchword, not only on the race track, but around it as well.

At Jamaica my first time out this year, I kept looking for the horses to come back to be unsaddled in front of the stands. Only the winner came back. I thought perhaps the rest of them had made off across the parking lot. They hadn't. They were merely being unsaddled up near the jockeys' room and the walking ring on the clubhouse turn to save time. The necessity for saving time, of course, is brought about by trying to run nine races in the time eight used to take.

At Delaware Park, they have not only torn down the lovely, shingled club house and replaced it with a new, modern, efficient one, but they have figured out how to save time too, two minutes per race. The way they save the two minutes is by having a direct teletype between the master transmitting point and 13 mutual cashiers' areas. This means the pay-off information can be disseminated simultaneously instead of having somebody make 13 separate phone calls. Also, it should cut down the chance of error if the person making the thirteen calls has a cold or something. So, now you can not only eat in air conditioned splendor, but you can get your money two minutes sooner - all at Delaware Park. R. J. Clark

JERSEY DERBY

The Jersey Derby - the oldest Derby in the history of American horse racing - will be revived at Garden State Park, Camden, N. J. during the Spring of 1960 with $100,000 in added money, it was announced by President Gene Mori.

The Jersey Derby will replace the $50,000 added Jersey Stakes, an important three-year-old fixture since Garden State Park was opened in 1942.

Conditions of The Jersey Derby will be announced later, Mori said. Current plans call for the race to be spotted between two current three-year-old classics, the Preakness and the Belmont, which generally are run four weeks apart.

Mori and Executive Vice-President Walter H. Donovan studied their way back through the archives of racing to find a suitable vehicle to gain Garden State Park additional prestige in the three-year-old division and they discovered the origin of all American Derbies.

They found that the first Derby contested in this country was at Paterson, N. J., in 1864 under the auspices of the Passaic County Jockey Club, with conditions of the race reading "The Jersey Derby - sweepstakes for three-year-olds, at $50 each, play or pay with $1,000 added, colts 100 pounds, fillies 92 pounds. Thirty-two subscribers at one mile and a half." It pre-dated the Kentucky Derby by eleven years.

"Garden State is the natural place to revive the event because it was the first track in the State to revive Thoroughbred horse racing after the sport with pari-mutuel wagering was legalized," Mori said. "We hope to present a race worthy of its historic beginning."

Twelve Thoroughbreds started in the first Jersey Derby. It was won by A. R. Alexander's bay colt Norfolk, a son of Lexington, the blind stallion. Norfolk was one of the few unbeaten colts in the history of American racing. Alexander sold him to the California sportsman, Theodore Winters, for $15,001. When Alexander bought Lexington for $15,000, his friends criticized him for paying such an unheard of sum for a blind horse. He wagered that he would sell one of Lexington's colts for a greater price, hence the odd dollar in the sales price.

Winters took Norfolk to California where his match races with Lodi were a brilliant chapter of early racing in the Golden State. Norfolk raced until 1867. He then was sent to stud where he sired Emperor of Norfolk and El Rio Rey, unbeaten juvenile of 1889.

The Jersey Derby was renewed in 1865 and won by Richmond, ridden by a negro jockey, born a slave, and known by no other name than "Abe." Merrill was home in front in 1866 and Monday showed the way in 1867. The Paterson plant closed down following the 1867 meeting because of the competition of more elaborate tracks.

The Jersey Derby was dormant until revived in 1871 at the original Monmouth Park where the four runnings there were accounted for by such powerful horses as Harry Bassett, Tom Bowling, Calvin and Baden Baden. Then came the long hiatus scheduled to come to an end when Garden State Park presents the renewal of the Jersey Derby next spring.

MRS. BIDDLE'S WINNER

American-born Mrs. A. B. Biddle, daughter of the former American Ambassador to Eire, who now resides in Ireland, had her colours carried to victory in the Greenlands Maiden Plate on the Curragh by the "Court Martial two year old Renegade, who started a 2-1 favorite and won by 2 1/2 lengths. ### NEVER LOOK A GIFT HORSE...

During her visit to New Zealand, Queen Elizabeth, the Queen Mother attended the Trentham Meeting in February, 1958, and consented to present the gold trophy to the winner of the valuable feature event, the St. James's Cup. And no one was more surprised than Her Majesty when, on receiving the Cup which had been won for him by the four year old Bali Ha'i, the owner Sir Ernest Davis asked her to accept the horse as a gift from "the sporting people of New Zealand".

After being sent to England in a ship equipped with a special sand roll, Bali Ha'i split a pastern soon after his arrival at Captain Boyd Rochfort's stable and could not race last season. However, there was a happy ending - well perhaps not yet the ending - to the story at Sandown Park on May 9th this year when Bali Ha'i upset the supposed "good thing" Vacarme, who was at 8-1 on, by winning the 1,200 pounds Coombe Stakes by three-quarters of a length. Bali Ha'i will probably run next in the Queen Alexandra Stakes at Ascot over 2 3/4 miles, the longest race on the flat in England. P.T.-C.

NO DOGS AT WATERFORD

Dogs, "man's best friend", are barred this year at Waterford Park. There's a reason. When not kept tied at the barn they sometimes run onto the track and can cause injury to a horse. A black cat once failed to stop the favored Avigon from winning the London Cup Stakes at the Alexandra Park race track in England. The cat cut across Avigon's path and lost all his nine lives at once. The horse stumbled, but regained his stride and went on to win. On the other hand, a dog started across the track during the running of another race and tripped two horses. Both jockeys wound up in the hospital.

COMMUTING VIA HELICOPTER - Veteran jockey Eddie Arcaro checks in at Garden State Park for his appearance aboard DUNCE in the $50,000 added Jersey Stakes at the Camden track. Arcaro rode Nadir in the Metropolitan at Belmont and hopped the "whirlybird" for a quick flight to the New Jersey oval. He was unsuccessful in both events. The helicopter landed in Garden State Park's centerfield.

NEWSTEAD YEARLINGS

Although it is rather early in the season for visiting stud farms from which yearlings have been consigned to the Fasig-Tipton Saratoga Sales next August, nevertheless I, being full of curiosity, could not wait any longer to see what Mr. Taylor Hardin had to offer this year, remembering his misfortune of 1958 in losing his surprise yearling by *My Babu-Banassa by Un Gaillard, through an accident. I did not quite know what to expect. One thing I did know was that I would see the same high quality yearlings as usual, but I was not prepared to see another yearling out of *Banassa, this time by Fair Trial, a chestnut horse by Fairway (head of the English Sires List in 1936 and 1939) out of Lady Juror (dam of The Recorder, The Black Abbot, Jurisdiction, Sansonnet, Giftlaw and Riot the winners of 25 1/2 races value 24,840 1/2 pounds). Fair Trial himself did not race at two years. At three years he was the winner of four stakes and was third in his only other start - The Eclipse Stakes, Sandown 1 1/4 miles to Windsor Lad and Theft. At four years he won 3 stakes beating such horses as Bobsleigh and Boswell. In his only other start he was second in the March Stakes, Newmarket, 1 1/4 Mi. carrying 127 lbs. *Banassa by Un Gaillard - Fatou Gaye, was one of the best animals in France at a mile and a half in 1954. She was remarkably consistent for a filly, being unplaced in only one of her eight races, winning three and being a close second to Sica Boy in the Prix de L'Arc de Triomphe this was her last race of the season in France, she then came to the U.S.A. representing France in the Washington International at Laurel Park where she finished second to the American horse Fisherman beaten 3/4 of a length. One and a half miles was really a minimum distance for *Banassa. In 1955 over longer trips she retained the reputation of being the best staying mare in France. In the 15 1/2 furlong Prix Jean Prat she mastered the pace-making Prince Rouge fifty yards from home to win by a short neck. At three and four years *Banassa won six races including Prix Boiard, Grande Prix de Saint-Cloud and Prix du Prince D'Orange beating the very best. One could go on and on about this chestnut colts racing ancestors, but there are nine others to be considered in the Newstead consignment, there is a chestnut colt by *Turn To-

Hill Rose by Rosemont, Hill Rose is a half sister to *Our Babu. A *Chestnut colt by Persian Gulf-Affair by Fair Trial, full brother to Abadon fastest horse in England. A *chestnut colt by Aureole-Weighbridge by Portlaw, Weighbridge is the dam of four top stakes winners. A chestnut colt by Alquest-Family Affair by Grand Admiral, Family Affair is a half sister to Combat Boots. Chestnut filly by Your Host-Slave Market to Polynesian. A bay filly by *Our Bau-Punch by *Bull Dog. A bay filly by Mark-ye-Well - *Trackabu was a stakes winner at two years in England. A chestnut filly by Citation-Guayana stakes winner of over $65,000, by *Hunters Moon 4th and a bay filly by Battlefield-Legendra dam of Hasty Doll and Rich Tradition both stakes winners, she by *Challenger 2nd. ### HILDENE

At the recent Annual Meeting of the Virginia Thoroughbred Association, in accepting the award for Virginia Broodmare of 1958, Christopher T. Chenery of The Meadow, Doswell, Va., said about his great mare, the late Hildene, "As a race horse she had great speed, but couldn't carry it far. She was a stud groom's ideal, very quiet, almost always conceiving on the first service. Blind at ten, she was always able to look after herself, never ran into anything, and was usually turned out with the other mares. Her bay offspring turned out to be top horses, but her chestnut produce were not worth a quarter. Her best were produced every other year, Mangohick, Hill Prince, Prince Hill, Third Brother and First Landing being her second, fourth, sixth, eighth and tenth foals."

FINNEY IN VIRGINIA

Humphrey S. Finney, president of the Fasig-Tipton Co., made a tour of breeding farms in Northern Virginia, inspecting the yearlings which have been consigned to the Company's Summer Sales at Saratoga. The state will be represented by approximately 100 yearlings. Sires include such outstanding stallions as Ribot, Bull Lea, *Princequillo, *Heliopolis, *Nasrullah, Nashua, Aureole, Eight Thirty, War Admiral and others.

BROOKMEADE YEARLINGS

A group of 12 yearlings, 10 colts and 2 fillies, have been selected by Brookmeade Farms from their 1958 crop of foals to be sold at the Fasig-Tipton Saratoga Sales, 10 through 14th August 1959. They are a bay colt by *Sea Charger out of Bomb Flash; a chestnut colt by Sailor out of Cubed Ice; a bay colt by *Windy City out of Elite; a bay colt by Sunglow out of Fiffille; a bay colt by Sailor out of Gallant Nurse; a bay colt by Cosmic Bomb out of Harem's Pride; a chestnut colt by More Sun out of Indian Nurse; a chestnut colt by *Sea Charger out of *Indulgence II' a chestnut filly by *Priam II out of Nymph; a bay filly by More Sun out of *Pluie D'or; a chestnut colt by Correspondent out of Purple Flower and a chestnut colt by Saratoga out of Royal Venture. G. G.

BLUE RIDGE YEARLINGS

From the farm of Mrs. George L. Harrison, Upperville, Va. comes the news that there will be at least three well bred yearlings consigned to the Fasig-Tipton Yearling Sales at Saratoga, N. Y. August 10th through 14 1959. These three are a dark bay colt by *Alibhai out of Your Gain; a bay colt by Hill Prince out of Wee Nip by War Admiral and a bay filly by To Market out of Minnora by *Mahmoud. G. G.

FROM ABROAD

A STORMY SESSION FOR SISTER OF *TEMPEST

E. Cooper Bland's three year old filly Stormy Session lived up to her name before she won the Stewards' Stakes at Chester.

After Bill Rickaby had mounted her, she absolutely refused to allow him to ride her down to the start, despite all the added encouragement of her trainer who attempted to lead her. Finally permission was obtained for Rickaby to dismount and the filly was then led to the gate and remounted.

Entering the short straight, Stormy Session was some ten lengths behind the leader with no apparent chance, having shied every time she passed a starting gate. Then she suddenly started to "fly" and finally won comfortably by three lengths. No doubt the favorite backers wished that the 11-2 chance never had reached the start, for the well-backed 3-2 favored Wanjohe was second!

By *Court Martial out of Squall, Stormy Session was bred by her owner, and is an own-sister to *Tempest, winner in England of the Blue Riband Trial Stakes and in the U.S.A., winner of several overnight handicaps plus the $25,000 San Pasqual at Santa Anita. Rickaby said afterwards that he thought that it might be bad sight that made her act as she did. P. T.-C.

MRS. WIDENER'S FRENCH WINS

Mrs. P. A. B. Widener recently won the Prix Portales at Longchamp, France, with Dan Cupid, (Native Dancer-Vixenette by *Sickle) and the Prix Ksar at Maisons Laffitte with Samoan Sun (Polynesian-Flash Out by *Ambrose Light).

QUEEN WINS A CHESHIRE CHEESE

For the first time since the race was founded 135 years ago, the Chester Cup, run at a little over 2 1/4 miles, was won on May 7th by the reigning Monarch. Moreover, it was to a worthy bearer of the Royal colors that victory went, being the top-weighted five year old Agreement (130 lb.), who won an exciting race by coming through inside the last fifty yards to win by a neck from the four year old Papy (119 lb.). Third was last year's winner, Sandiacre, with 122 lb. Last year Agreement caused one of the big surprises of the season when beating the Queen's mare Almeria in the Doncaster Cup.

In addition to the prize of 2,415 pounds and a trophy the Queen won a 50 lb. Cheshire Cheese value 9 guineas.

Bred at the Royal Studs, Agreement is by Persian Gulf out of Northern Hope, by Borealis. P. T.-C.

*MY BABU FILLY WINS

Of the progeny that he left behind in Europe, *My Babu's fillies have so far proved superior to his colts.

A winner first time out this year, and evidently well-fancied too as she was backed from 10-1 to half those odds, was the two-year-old filly with the curious name of Chinky Bu, who won the Trowell Plate at Nottingham comfortably by a length.

Out of the Dante mare, Dantiste, who was not herself a winner but an own-sister to the good Chinese Cracker, Chinky Bu was bought at the Newmarket October Sales for 1,300 guineas. P. T.-C.

WILWYN FOR SOUTH AFRICA

Wilwyn, winner of the inaugural running of the Washington D.C. International in 1952, has been sold to South Africa after the present covering season. Since retiring to stud in 1954, he had bred, from his first two crops, the winners of 22 races worth nearly 10,000 Pounds up to the end of last season.

Wilwyn had seemed to be the last hope of a continuance of the Oleander male line through his sire, Pink Flower, for it has now almost died out in its native Germany, and is only weakly represented in Italy and the U.S.A. Now, with the export of Wilwyn, there seems to be little likelihood of a revival. P. T.-C.

IRISH WINNERS BY AMERICAN SIRES

Wingail and Calico, first and second in the Enfield Maiden Two-Year-Old Plate for fillies at Phoenix Park, are both by American-bred sons of Bull Lea. Wingail is by Mr. Jos. McGrath's imported Kentucky Derby winner, Hill Gall, and Coaltown, who won 23 races at three, four, five and six years in the United States, is the sire of Calico. (The Irish Field)

ANOTHER FOR *TULYAR

*Tulyar had another winner in England when the well-backed Rooske, a brown colt out of Lady Confey owned by H. J. Joel, won the Clifton Stakes for two year olds at Thirsk.

Taking the lead inside the final furlong, Rooske sailed on to a comfortable victory by 1 1/2 lengths. He is one of the last crop of foals left in Europe before *Tulyar was exported to stand at Spendthrift in July, 1956. P. T.-C.

GAGA DEAD

Duval A. Headley's remarkable brood-mare, Gaga (*Bull Dog-Alpope, by Equi-pose), dam of the great horse and sire Tom Fool, died at Headley's Manchester Farm, near Lexington, Ky., on Saturday May 9th, a few hours after foaling a colt by Helioscope. She was 17 years old. Unfortunately, the foal, which appeared to be most healthy at birth, died the next day.

DELAWARE PARK'S $10,000 ADDED POLLY DRUMMOND STAKES - Twin Lane Farm's GRAY FLANK (#8) jockey Arthur Chambers up, won easily. She is a 2-year-old bay filly by Spy Song-Dada, by By Jimminy, bred by R. B. Renfrew.

Deer and Hounds

William P. Wadsworth, M.F.H.

You do not have to be a naturalist nor a biologist to discover that the deer population in the United States in on the increase. Where only an occasional specimen formerly was seen, we now observe entire herds. And deer are now appearing in territories where, until a few years ago, deer were never encountered.

All of which means that foxhunters in some areas now have a problem they have never been faced with before. This is the problem of keeping hounds from running deer. It is not an easy one to solve, but a Master who fails to meet the problem with some constructive solutions is asking for trouble and some frustrating days in his field.

For those who are hunting in country where deer are just coming in, it may be of interest to mention some signs that should arouse suspicion that hounds are on a deer line. Unless there is snow or soft footing, the tell-tale hoof marks will not show and other signs will have to be interpreted. First of all, you will not expect a deer to run the irregular line of a fox. Furthermore, because of the stronger deer scent, hounds will drive harder than when on a fox track. Because of this difference in scent, the problem of chasing deer usually is more serious on a poor scenting day. Often the cry of a hound on deer is higher and choppy. Another indication as to whether the quarry is deer will depend upon the location of the line. If it is along an extremely steep slope, or through dense brush and cover, the huntsman can logically suppose that it is not a deer line. However, don't depend too much on this signal, as deer have a faculty of traveling in what might be considered "impossible" places.

The instant you determine a hound is on a deer line, stop him as soon as possible. If it is possible to stop hounds the first two or three times they get started, they stop much more easily in future; after being stopped a number of times they lose interest. The punishment should fit the crime, and the amount of disciplinary measures used in pulling off hounds from a deer line should be in proportion to how obedient they were to your command.

Obedience Training

Of course hounds must be so trained that they can be stopped off any ordinary temptation first. This is done routinely in the course of training young entry not to chase sheep, puppy dogs, pigs, chickens and all the other various temptations to which they are exposed.

Every huntsman or trainer has a different idea of how to accomplish this first obedience training. All agree we must first gain the young hound's confidence, so that he will come when his name is called. To have this lesson learned thoroughly requires some patience and time, together with a good many pounds of puppy biscuit doled out as rewards for prompt behavior.

After the youngster learns his first lesson, he can be coupled with an old, obedient hound and taken for a walk in the open. He is expected to come when called by name, but if he ignores the command, the older hound's name can be called, thus insuring an escorted return trip to where the trainer is standing.

When sufficient work has been given to this phase of training, it is time to put some temptation in the hound's path, to see how staunch he will be in his obedience. Again coupled to an older hound, he should be worked in an enclosure where there is a chicken, pig, sheep, or some other conveniently available "temptation." When he starts a chase, he is called back by name. Again we have the old hound joined to him, who can be called back if the young hound disobeys. As further insurance, it is well to have a helper stationed within the enclosure, ready to drive the couple back to the trainer, in event that the old hound also succumbs to the temptation and refuses to obey.

Most of us have had the experience of thinking a hound is "sheep-proof" because he will not chase a sheep quietly grazing in the training enclosure. Then how disappointed we are when hunting the same hound to have him take off after a flock of stampeding sheep. An understanding huntsman will realize that there is a difference in degrees of temptation, and that patient work is the key to success with hounds.

Mechanical Devices

There are a good many mechanical contrivances which have been used in an effort to make a hound deer-proof. There are chemical scents on the market, whose avowed purpose is to make the scent of deer repulsive to hounds. Recently there has been manufactured a short-wave shocking device, attached to the collar, which permits a trainer with the proper transmitter to discipline a hound by remote control.

Some huntsmen have used a deer hide to entice hounds into an electric fence. Others, of the rough and ready school, go out in deer country equipped with a pistol loaded with bird shot. They claim considerable success warming a hound's hind-quarters when caught running deer. The range is carefully calculated to sting hard without penetrating, and of course the hound must be going away so his eyes are protected. Foxhunters, in considering this technique, must weigh carefully the danger of making hounds gun-shy.

Whatever method you use in disciplin-

THE BELMONT ALL LEATHER COVERED FELT EXERCISE SADDLE

No. 692 - LEATHER COVERED FELT EXERCISE and STEEPLECHASE SADDLE: These saddles have become extremely popular at the race track as nothing equals them in comfort to horse and rider. Regardless of your horse's back conformation this saddle sits squarely and securely. ## The Cape Hunt

Muriel Bowen

There used to be a number of packs of hounds hunting jackal and also the odd fox in the Southern part of Africa, but that was some years ago now.

Today there are only two packs in existence. At the Cape there is the Cape Hunt and Polo Club carried on with little support, but in very sporting fashion, by Major Jerauld Wilks who has been Master since 1943. To the North, at Johannesburg, there is the Rand Hunt Club, a pack that does things in great style and of which Mr. Peter Wilson is the Master.

I had two days with the Cape Hunt and found a very jolly field, a very good-looking pack of hounds, and country quite different to anything I have experienced in other parts of the world.

Major Kempthorne Lewis, the honorary huntsman, put hounds into a dense covert, near the meet, and they were soon away on a jackal which gave us a circling hunt. This was unusual I was told, as South African jackal tend to run more or less straight.

Another run of somewhat shorter length followed. We ran over open veldt, through small bits of dense forest, across rough heath, and occasional stretches of fine silver sand, barren of any vegetation.

We never did get into the open. But then there was no open country in the Virginia sense within sight. Hounds pushed their quarry hard in dense, jungle-like conditions.

There was an occasional donga (ditch) to jump and the branches of the trees slapped our faces. The trees were what are called Fort Jackson willows. They have light, whippy branches so a horse can push his way through, but the only way I could see over the top of them was to stand on the saddle! The willow dates from the Boer War when the Australian Cavalry imported hay for their horses. Every since it has spread like fury in the Cape.

"Awful stuff," said Major Lewis. "Drop a leaf from your pocket and it would spring up in the drawing room!"

South African Jackal

Both Major Wilks and Major Lewis agreed that the South African jackal is far more difficult to account for than is a fox. For one thing he can run faster and the dense undergrowth which covers quite a large tract of the country helps him to get away.

The jackal has a number of allies, notably the buck, the meerkal, and the wild ostrich which, according to Major Lewis, "will run for ten miles without turning a hair." Indeed it is generally conceded that only one huntsman, the late Arthur Hazelrigg ever killed jackal in large numbers at the Cape. He was a professional from Leicestershire.

Jackal do such damage to livestock that the South African Government pays heavily for their destruction. Consequently they are hunted ceaselessly by all manner and means and the Cape Hunt has to move further in search of sport.

The staggering number of 300,000 sheep are killed every year by jackal in the Union of South Africa as against 85,000 killed in the ordinary way for human consumption.

Drag Hunting

My second day with the Cape Hunt was as a photographer following in Major Wilks' jeep. We crackled our way through heather and bounced in and out of sand dunes.

The Cape Hunt maintains two packs of hounds of about ten couples each. One hunts jackal on Saturdays and the other hunts a drag on Sundays. There was no doubting which is the more popular sport. I made up "the field" when I went jackal hunting but for the drag there were about 30 followers.

Following by jeep gave me more of an opportunity of seeing horses and hounds. Most people, including the Master, like the all-purpose horse, the horse that hunts in the Winter and can be pulled out for polo in the Summer. The field generally was mounted on horses that were no more than 15.2 h.h., stockily built with nothing like so much blood as you would see - and want! - hunting from Middleburg.

There were several show jumpers out. But there wasn't anything for them to jump. Several times the committee has erected jumps on the drag lines only to find that after a couple of days they had been dismantled by the African population and used as firewood.

Show jumping has become a great sport in South Africa in the last few years. Indeed it is sweeping ahead like a bush fire. And despite the impossibility, because of distance, or getting teams from abroad to compete in South Africa the standard of jumping is remarkably high. Fourteen-year-old Gonda Butters, who hunts with the Cape Hunt, has already made her mark in adult competitions in England and in Germany and others are not far behind.

The Hounds

I liked the Cape hounds. They were very good looking and from what little I could see they were also good in their ing hounds for running deer, there is some danger of affecting their boldness as hunters. It is to be hoped that before the need for such discipline arises, the young hounds would first have had some fun running foxes. The praise and congratulation you have previously given them for good runs, help instill in them the pleasure of the chase after the right variety of game, and make it easier to call them off of the wrong type of quarry.

If hounds have to be whipped off deer, it is better to have someone other than the huntsman administer the discipline. However, if no help is with you at the time of the emergency, certainly you should show your displeasure to hounds in a very definite manner. If you have gained a hound's confidence as a pup, he ought to be able to take some chastising from you with good grace.

Heredity

One occasionally hears talk of hounds that have been bred deer-proof. Entire packs can be trained so they are deer-proof, but one wonders if this is a trait which can be transmitted by hereditary genes. If a hound could inherit deer-proof qualities might he not also turn out to be fox-proof? It is certainly hard to say what qualities come from heredity and what from environment. A good pack will transmit good habits to a young hound, and a badly trained pack will teach the young entry bad habits. A young hound usually goes out for the first few times "for the ride" until he gets seasoned. It is always a general observation that the minority goes along with the majority.

In summary, the best advice to those who want to hunt hounds in deer country can be written in a few words. (1) Learn to recognize a deer line; (2) before taking young hounds into the field make sure they have had basic obedience training; (3) try to make sure young entry have had several good times running foxes before they encounter deer; and (4) stop hounds early before they get the deer habit. ## Mason Houghland

The very name of Mason Houghland tells the type of man he was. There was a kind of brick and mortar in his make-up, that type of ruggedness in his body and in the integrity of his mind and heart.

He persevered to success, distinguished for accomplishment in the field of commerce. He pioneered and built from the ground up the Spur Distributing Co., from nothing into a multi-million dollar enterprise. It is a monument to his business acumen, and to the qualities of leadership that were his.

He loved the land. He loved it more when there was the thunder of pounding hoofs upon it and he was astride a horse, and the hot music of hounds' mouths was against the good earth.

Mason Houghland honored good horses. He handled them like the foxhunter he was or the general he could have been. The rush of the wind showed always on his face. The reined grace and power of the Thoroughbreds he sat showed in the quiet manner of the man as he moved among men.

Those who had the privilege of his friendship cherished and admired him. The Irish in him showed in his imagination and daring. It may be seen in the books and articles which he wrote, for he wrote as well as he rode. He could relate a story at the banquet table or the fire-side with the moving suspense of the running of a fox, whose course through hill pass or valley Mason Houghland usually could foretell.

It is good to think that the spirit and memory of this man will never leave the rolling lands of Middle Tennessee. His name will be a legend where men gather, whether in business conference, in the drawing room, at the paddock, or in the hunting field. His consideration, his wit, his courtesy and his thoughtfulness were characteristic of this cultured gentleman, true sportsman, and loyal friend.

work. Crosses are a real problem in a country like the Cape which is so far away from other hunts. Indeed, drafts have to come all the way from England, a sea journey of more than 6,000 miles. Over the years successive Dukes of Beaufort - descendants of the first master - have been good friends to the hunt sending drafts out from England. But South African Government regulations have made this increasingly difficult.

At the kennels I found an interesting innovation. This was a deep bath through which all hounds pass on their return to kennels. I had seen something similar with the Limerick devised by Lord Daresbury, but that was just a footbath. The Cape hounds on their return to kennels from a hunt or from exercise go through a real bath almost three feet deep. Major Wilks said that it does wonders for the hounds coats and I must say that they did look burnished and healthy.

One memorable thing about hunting at the Cape is the scenery. At the drag hunt meets, which are near Capetown, one is always conscious of the grandeur of nearby Table Mountain. There are numerous inlets of the sea, vividly blue and breaking against the chocolate brown of the rocks. Long may hunting at the Cape continue to gladden the heart of the passing traveller.

Chronicle Cover Biographical Sketch Of Samuel Alken

The gifted Alken family produced no less than six, and perhaps seven, sporting artists. Of these, four at one time or another signed their work simply 'S. Alken'. (Samuel Alken, Sr., Samuel Alken, Jr., Samuel Henry Alken and Seffrein John Alken). It is therefore sometimes extremely difficult - in the absence of specific dates - to determine accurately which of the various members of this talented family executed certain paintings. Fortunately, in the case of the painting depicted on the cover, the range of possible choice is restricted to Samuel Alken, Sr., or Samuel Alken, Jr., as the painting is signed and dated 'S. Alken, 1807.'

Since Walter Shaw Sparrow - who with the late Mr. George Kendall did more extensive research than anyone else on the Alkens - has never proved to his own satisfaction that Samuel Alken, Sr., was indeed a painter in oils - although a talented draftsman, architect and engraver - it appears most likely that the picture in question is by Samuel Alken, Jr. (1784-1825). Mr. Shreve, the present owner of this finely composed painting, accepts this view, particularly since many other circumstances in the life of both the father and the son point to the same conclusion.

Samuel Alken, Jr., one of seven children was born April 10th, 1784, the son of Samuel Alken and Lydia -, at No. 3 Dufours Place, Soho, London. He was the older brother of Henry (Thomas) Alken (1785-1851) the foremost, artistically, of the family, first known as 'Ben Tally Ho' and later as Henry Alken, Sr., Samuel Alken, Jr., was 31 years of age at the time of his father's death (1815) so he had about eleven productive years during his father's life time. 'Animal Painters of England' by Sir Walter Gilbey (London - 1900) states in part: "Samuel Alken (Jr.) worked in both oil and water colors, sometimes on a large scale in the former. Other drawings are mere pencil sketches, only partly colored. Many of his pictures, in either medium, display great merit, particularly as character studies of the sport of his time.

His range was a very wide one, but it is through his innumerable hunting scenes that he is most generally known. One of these entitled 'Hunters at Covertsides', portraits of horses belonging to the celebrated Colonel Thornton, was engraved by J. Pollard and published by S. Knights in 1820. Four companion works by this artist 'Fox Hunting', 'Hare Hunting', 'Stag Hunting', and 'Coursing' engraved by T. Sutherland, plates measuring 26" x 9", were published by James W. Laird of 1 Leadenhall Street in 1841, some years after the painter's death. Another series of pictures 'Partridge Shooting', 'Pheasant Shooting', 'Woodcock Shooting', and 'Grouse Shooting', were engraved by J. Pollard, the plates measuring 11" x 7 1/2", and were published at the same time.

Samuel Alken's hunting pieces are cleverly drawn and afford an excellent idea of the stamp of horse hunted at the time, as well as the style of dress in vogue; his hawking and coursing scenes are equally characteristic and his dogs - greyhounds, setters, pointers and other breeds - are always good."

Soon after his father's death, the younger Samuel, like his brother Henry, was called upon by circumstances to help his youngest brothers George and Seffrein John make a start. His work was widely published in 'The Annals of Sporting and Fancy Gazette', although his twenty-five plates have invited distrust because they pay no respect to the use of the word 'Jr.' All of them were published before 1825, the year wrongly accepted as that in which the elder Samuel Alken died. The younger Samuel's work in 'The Annals of Sporting' ended abruptly in December 1823. It is assumed by Shaw Sparrow and other authorities that he died about 1825 or a little later.

Kimberton Hunt Club

The 14th annual Kimberton Hunt Club Horse Show attracted 87 horses, as well as a large group of spectators. A slight chill in the air kept the riders and horses fresh until the final class, which was not completed until 8:30 p.m.

The Spider, owned by Mr. & Mrs. William Babb and ridden by March Lockhart, refused to win anything but blues. He was ultimately the unquestionable Adult Champion. This was a great victory for

Mr. & Mrs. Babb and Miss Lockhart, as The Spider is still a green horse and this was his first Championship.

Dixie Queen, owned and ridden by Carol Preston, won the Children's Championship by consistent placings throughout the day in this Division.

All of the shows this year are attracting many entries. It seems that there are twice as many horses around as in previous years. This is illustrated by the fact that there was another show the same day of Kimberton, and they too ran into the evening hours, due to well filled classes.

BOOKS

THE RACING GAME. A HISTORY OF FLAT RACING. BY R. RODRIGO, LONDON, PHOENIX SPORTS BOOKS, 1958, pp. 224, ILLUS., 21 SHILLINGS. OBTAINABLE FROM SOCCER ASSOCIATES, NEW ROCHELLE, N.Y.

The publishers, Phoenix Sports Books, are engaged in bringing out a series of sporting histories, having previously covered cricket, boxing, soccer and badminton. Mr. Rodrigo represents the third generation of turf journalists in his family. He manages to compress within the compass of about 200 small octavo pages most of the high points of British racing during the last 250 years - and he does it very well. It is a useful and entertaining book which definitely fills a previous void in turf literature. A. M.-S.

NEARLY ALL HUNTING. 25 COUPLE OF SPORTING AND ALMOST SPORTING ESAYS. BY DOUGLAS NEALE, "DRIFTER", LONDON, VINTON, 1959, pp. 200, ILLUSTRATED WITH DRAWINGS BY MICHAEL LYNE AND PHOTOGRAPHS BY FRANK MEADS, 18 SHILLINGS.

The well known hunting journalist Douglas Neale, who for many years has contributed to the British sporting press under his own name and under various pen names, usually that of "Drifter", has collected 50 of the best having to do with Foxhunting and Otterhunting, plus a miscellaneous group about Terriers, Point-to-Points, Ferrets, and other sporting items. They cover the current scene as well as sporting events and people of former times. The book makes entertaining and informative reading and is particularly well illustrated. A.M.-S.

THE IRISH HORSE. OFFICIAL PUBLICATION OF THE BLOODSTOCK BREEDERS' AND HORSE OWNERS' ASSOCIATION OF IRELAND. VOL. XXIV., DUBLIN, 1958, pp. 334, ILLUS., 2 pounds.

This valuable annual, frankly a promotion piece for Irish bloodstock, continues to grow in size and stature with the years. It opens with a table of the winnings of Irish-bred horses in 1958 in Great Britain, the United States, Ireland, France, Malaya, India, Canada, Venezuela, Belgium, Italy, Ceylon, Spain, Pakistan, Denmark, Holland, Mexico, Norway, Australia, Germany, Sweden, and Rhodesia - which gives an idea of the scope and comprehensiveness of the book. Authoritative articles on racing in these countries are contributed by leading correspondents. There is also a section on the horse shows of Dublin, Belfast and Cork and another on the Irish packs of hounds. A.M.-S.

THE YOUNG RIDER THROUGH THE AGES. BY DOROTHY MARGARET STUART, LONDON, HARRAP, 1958, pp. 179, ILLUS., 12 1/2 SHILLINGS.

There are those who write about history who make it dry as dust and there are those who make it as colorful and fascinating as in reality it was. Fortunately the author of this modest volume belongs in the latter category. She has assembled a series of authentic stories about young riders from earliest classical times to the present day - Greeks, Romans, Ancient Irish, Anglo-Saxons, Vikings, Normans, the Middle Ages, Tudors and Stuarts, Princely Pupils, Young Riders in Famous Books, Boys in Battle, together with a chapter on The Girl Riders, 2000 B.C. to 1939 A.D. It makes very entertaining reading for people of all ages. A.M.-S.

THE ODDS, THE PLAYER, THE HORSES. BY ROBERT S. DOWST, NEW YORK, DODD MEAD & CO., 1959, pp. 182, $3.50.

For over 25 years the books of Robert Saunders Dowst on how to bet on horses have been among the leaders in this field. As the author puts it: "Through sheer ignorance, emotionalism or plain foolishness, a high percentage of money bet on horses each year in this country is merely thrown away. A player who has not made himself a good handicapper and has not put himself in a position to pick his own horses is quite without hope of making a red cent over a period of time through playing horses." Anyone who masters the material contained in these pages will most certainly graduate from the sucker to the handicapper class. A.M.-S.

Childrens Services

The ninth annual Children's Services Horse Show and Country Fair proved a record breaker. More spectators (10,000 on Saturday, more on Sunday) more horses (close to 400) and the tremendous good will of business people in the greater Hartford area made this year's show a bigger money maker than ever. The cause - helping homeless and needy children all over Connecticut.

Harry DeLeyer and his jumpers, Night Arrest, the young grey mare and Snowman, the flea-bitten grey, ex-plow horse were practically unbeatable. Night Arrest won four firsts and three seconds to claim the jumper championship. Snowman coasted the first two days of the show taking numerous thirds, however the lovable old horse with the effortless jump came through to win the stake and the reserve award.

Nine-year-old Jimmy McGurk stole the show on Sunday when he rode the St. Jude's entry Prince Errol to first place in the Knockdown and Out class. Jimmy's brother Tommy (14) placed second on Sweet Cap.

Ralph Petersen's Holiday won three working hunter classes including the stake then placed second in two events to claim the championship.

Beth Iffland, who studies under Victor Hugo-Vidal, won the hunting seat championship and a class entitled United States Hunting Seat Championship, a four-phase test of horsemanship. V. L.

Sedgefield Hunt

Perfect weather combined with a beautiful setting and the finest of horses to make the Sedgefield Hunt Horse Show one of the most spectacular in the Southeast this season. Members of the Hunt, which sponsored the show, did all the ground work, from Junior members erecting bleachers to lady members who took care of all the housekeeping details and left nothing undone for the convenience and pleasure of the visitors. Hunter classes were jam-packed with 25 and 30 horses in each Division - but the Show ran quickly and smoothly, thanks to the efficiency of the Horse Show Committee and their staff. Saturday morning's Junior classes ran a bit over-time to no-one's surprise - each class had a minimum of 25 entries of such good caliber the judging had to be most exacting. It took a few classes before the Hunters settled down to steadier performances over courses that really did "simulate hunting conditions". There were some odd turns, jumps were slightly off-set instead of perfectly straight, the in-and-out was more like a real road crossing as the distance between the two elements was an uneven number of strides - all this made horses and riders work for smooth rounds. At the end of the first day, Championships were far from a foregone conclusion - rounds had not been too consistent and ribbons were widely scattered.

When the dust had settled after the last hotly contested class, carefully counted points revealed that Hapgood, owned by John S. Pettibone of Middleburg, Va. and ridden by Shelley Warren, was Champion in both the working and Conformation Divisions. Green Working Hunter Champion was Air Dome, owned by Lakelawn Farms and ridden by Ed Daniels. Only two Open Jumper classes were offered, both of them won by horses from Charlotte N. C. and ridden by Joe Bunn, who had a busy time when he rode four horses and tied himself three ways in the Knockdown and out, and two ways in the Jumper Stake.

There were a few spills with no harm done except to chances of being in the ribbons in that particular class - one Junior rider was heard to say, after her pony took a hard fall in the Pony Hunter Class "He was going so beautifully until he fell down"! Bebe

James River Hunt

For a change, the James River Hunt Horse show had perfect show weather. Blue skies and temperatures ranging in the 60's prevailed throughout the weekend. No hurricane warnings were up, and the rains did not come as last year. Classes were well filled and went off like clock work.

Winning at James River looks like it can become habit forming. Jackie Blair rode Montego to the open jumper tricolor for the second year in succession. The grey gelding is owned by Richard S. Reynolds, Jr. of Richmond.

Another repeat winner from last year was Mr. & Mrs. M. Kenneth Taylor's Johnny Reb. This good looking bay pony took the small Pony Hunter Championship with 22 1/2 points.

Thirteen-year-old Ronnie Richardson of Richmond almost made a clean sweep of the junior hunter division. She missed by placing second in the Junior Working Hunters event. Ronnie piloted her father's palomino gelding Social Error to the junior hunter championship with 18 points. K.B.

Owner-rider Laurie Morgan of Condobolin, N.S.W. on SALAD DAYS, winner of the Three Day Horse Trials in Sydney, Australia, at the end of March. This fence was 4 feet with an added 4 feet deep ditch on the landing side. Salad Days led each phase - Dressage, Endurance Test and held his lead in the Show Jumping. Seven years old he seems a likely choice for the Olympic team. Laurie Morgan has been selected with eight other riders to form the training team for the Rome Olympic Games in 1960.

Brandywine Manor

While grooms groaned, dry cleaners and bootblacks rubbed their hands in glee at the prospect of booming business brought about by the Brandywine Manor Horse Show, held near Downingtown, Pa. For the show was plagued by deeper and sloppier mud than one would ever deem possible, as the result of a two-day downpour prior to the event. The ring, only the day before a brilliant emerald green oval, soon took on the appearance of a deeply ploughed field, with hardly a blade of green stuff to be seen. Horses were hock-deep in it, and splattered nearly to the withers, clothes, and especially boots, fared no better. The plague extended outside the ring, in the spectator area, so there was little visiting back and forth, unless one had to venture away.

But in spite of the soggy and difficult going horses managed quite well, especially in the "Skyscraper" jumping event, when two horses successfully negotiated the five-foot six-inch level before going out at five feet nine. These were William Douglas' Maybe, with Frank (Froggy) Yaksoe in the saddle, and Herman Shulz' Jumping Jack, ridden by Kenny Smullen. The two horses were given two triple tries at the high mark, but after both failed, they tossed, with the honor going to Jumping Jack. Four horses contended in this class.

Other jumping events attracted 15 to twenty horses. R. B. Snyder's Rudolph, with Allen Garner in the irons, and Miss Frisco, owner-ridden by Jim LeFevre, each captured a first and a second, to tie with eight points for the championship. Again a coin was tossed when Rudolph received the lucky nod as champion.

Mrs. Joseph Ferguson rode the hunter champion, Play Girl, owned by Milton Kulp, Jr., earning 11 points by winning first in the stake, and two seconds. The trusty piece of silver had to be called into play again to determine the hunter reserve title, going to Timber Lane, Thompson Stables, with Jane Weiner riding, who had tied with eight points with Major's Mistake of Derbydown Stables, ridden by Jane Farquhar.

The show attracted an entry list of 63 horses, despite the unfavorable weather conditions. Only one spill occurred. The rider only got "mud in his eye," - it wouldn't be likely anyone could be injured in that soft ground. Spectators were sparse but hardy and good-humored. When the show was over at a goodly hour, they all went home feeling they had had a good time in spite of rain and mud.

Tryon

The rain which fell during the Tryon Riding and Hunt Club's 31st Annual Horse Show failed to dampen the enthusiasm of more than 2500 spectators, who turned out to watch the fine performances and sportsmanship of horses and riders, who at times performed in a downpour of rain. This was the first time in its history that it has rained during the show, but the community spirit which has made it one of the most colorful shows in this vicinity during the "dry" years, carried it successfully through its first "wet" one.

Betty Reynolds, riding her father's Will Do, won the Hunter Championship and the Jack McKnight Memorial Trophy. She, also, took Reserve honors on Can Do, a typy bay mare which Betty owned and showed successfully last year. Can Do is now owned by Mrs. James Burden of Aiken, South Carolina. H.H.

Devon Horse Show

Margaret L. Smith

The 63rd annual Devon Horse Show was notable for the record number of horses entered - nearly 900; the record crowds attending - more than 12,000 the closing day; the record good weather - only four or five drops of rain; the record number of points piled up by the champions in most of the divisions - 27 1/2 for the big hunter championship and 24 for the jumper champ.

The highest number of points compiled by any one champion were the 27 1/2 tallied in the conformation division by handsome Duke of Paeonian, that lovely dappled brown fellow belonging to Mr. and Mrs. John S. Pettibone of Middleburg Va., and ridden beautifully by Mrs. Shelley Warren.

Ace of Diamonds, reserve conformation champion, owned by Mr. and Mrs. George Clarkson, St. Louis, Mo., and ridden by Mr. Clarkson, ended with 20 1/2 points, although he actually won four blues, one more than the champ.

But the largest collection of blues - five - was earned by the Working Hunter champion, Little Sombrero, owned by Ratliff Stables of Pass Christian, Miss. Ridden by Miss Laurie Ratliff, who celebrated her 16th birthday the same day she won the championship, Little Sombrero's score read in fives across the top of the working hunter points chart, including the stable class. He won no lesser points. Last year at Devon young Miss Ratliff celebrated her 15th birthday by winning the lady's championship with Cottage Den. Both these horses are well-known to Devon fans, having been shown many times before under the colors of former owners.

Another straight-blue ribbon winner to earn a championship was the lovely young four-year-old bay gelding, Sir Guy, owned by John R. Sheldrake, Jr., of Malvern, Pa., ridden by Mrs. Kenneth G. Winchell.

Mr. and Mrs. L. Clay Camp, of Rockville, Va., nailed down two championships with their promising three-year-old gelding, Sunset Hill, ridden by Robert Burke, who won the Green Conformation hunter championship and also the title of Best Young horse.

The young hunter championship also was close, with 8 points awarded to Came Across, owned by Miss Beverly Armstrong, of Mechanicsburg, Pa., ridden by Jack Sterling, and seven points to Mr. and Mrs. Pettibone's Hapgood, ridden by Mrs. Warren, for the championship and reserve spots, respectively.

Devon has several other events which are as much a part of Devon as the familiar blue and white colors and the little blue and white stores in the shopping area.

One of these is a challenge trophy for the best lady's hunter, retired this year by Spanish Mint, owned by Mrs. J. Deane Rucker, Grosse Pointe Farms, Mich., and ridden by Miss Peggy Augustus. Spanish Mint had won the trophy in 1956, and Mrs. Rucker's Clifton's Champ in 1951. The owner received permanent possession of the Edward T. Stotesbury Memorial trophy, which has been in competition since 1940. No points are awarded in this class.

The Mr. Newbold Ely's Hounds Challenge trophy for the best fox hunting performance was captured by Chappaqua, owned by Mr. and Mrs. Henry D. Paxson, and ridden by Mrs. Joseph Ferguson. Mrs. Ferguson won the same trophy last year with Irish Warrior, owned by Irl A. Daffin, Lancaster, Pa. This class also does not carry championship points.

The four-in-hand of matched bays owned by Mr. and Mrs. James K. Robinson, Jr., of Crebilly Farms, West Chester, Pa., made a clean sweep of the coaching classes and retired three important trophies. The other competitor was a four-in-hand of matched gray Welsh ponies from Staunton Hill Farm, Brookneal, Va. A point of interest there lies in the fact that the off-wheel pony mare, Cefn More Joy, gave birth to a foal the first morning of the show, but the little mother was in harness the same night pulling the coach with her three teammates. The foal, born somewhat prematurely, was named Devon Surprise.

In the jumper division, points were on the sky-high side, although they still not reach those of the Duke of Paeonian.

Windsor Castle, that amazing young horse who rode out of the west into Pennsylvania last year, and startled his rider, Max Bonham, and his owner, Carl Miller, Jr., of Battle Creek, Mich., by picking up more than $5000 at the 1958 Pennsylvania National alone, captured the jumper crown. The reserve championship, went to Sweet Cap, owned by the Rev. Thomas P. Toohar, of Troy, New York, ridden by 14-year-old Tommy McGurk, the riding sensation of the show.

There was a big surprise in the stake, when Red Aero, owned by Frank Imperatore, Canonsburg, Pa., placed first under the guidance of Al Fiore, after not having won a point previously - Fiore rode him in the last two classes. Incidentally, the stake course was so stiff that Red Aero's victory was won after four faults, the best score of the lot.

It seemed as though most of the jumpers started out better than they ended, as the courses grew stiffer and the temperature grew higher, although it is safe to say that all the jumper courses were pretty stiff.

One of the most hotly contested was the FEI Knockdown and Out, in which a lengthy "duel" was fought between Windsor Castle and High Noon, owned by

THE CHRONICLE

Mrs. A. C. Randolph, Upperville, Va., very capably ridden by Miss Kathy Kusner. Both made the course clean, and on the first jump-off, both had four faults. On the second jump-off Windsor Castle went clean, and High Noon had four.

Meanwhile, eight other horses who originally had four faults, jumped off once, then tossed for positions among three who had no faults, and three who had four on the jump-off. At first the eight drew for positions, thinking there were only four ribbons (and money prizes in the class.) Then someone discovered there were eight places, and they decided to jump-off. Adolph Mogavero, who had drawn third the first time, drew - (you guessed it) - seventh the second time.

H. C. (Jiggs) Baldwin III, and Jayber pulled a bit of surprise about the middle of the week by winning two firsts, the FEI knockdown and out time limit and the open class. He appeared then to be a threat to Windsor Castle, - that is, until one consulted one's program and found he was not entered in the remaining events.

The green jumper division was completely dominated by Morton W. Smith's Desert Gold, from Middleburg, Va. The eight-year-old chestnut gelding won four out of the five classes on the agenda.

The Welsh pony and cross-bred pony divisions were outstanding for number and quality of ponies entered. Mrs. Austin duPont's Liseter Hill Farm, of Newtown Square, Pa., having 27 entries alone, the largest number of entries by one exhibitor in the entire show.

In fact, nearly all the champs, except the very young'ns, found themselves in a familiar spot when they entered the winner's circle. Windsor Castle was champion at Pennsylvania National last year, after winning every class in which he was entered, including the Big Jump, the Sky-Hi jump, the stake and two other events. He was champion at the Chicago International and at Cincinnati later. Ace of Diamonds was green champion at the National last fall, and Duke of Paeonian was 1958 reserve champion at Devon. Little Sombrero was Florida champ, and won championships at Beaumont, Tex., and Kansas City, Mo.

As is the trend, the conformation division was smallest of the principal hunter sections, with 16 entered in the stake. There were 29 green conformation hunters; 31 working, and a whopping 50 green working hunters. The jumper division drew 26 entries. There were 40-some young horses entered in the suitable to become hunters classification.

Coral Gables Riding Club

Florida's Summer Circuit opened with the Coral Gables Riding Club Show. The quantity of local Miami hunters has tripled and there were thirteen well turned out entries in each class.

Pony jumping was offered for the first time in Florida and along with Beginner's Jumping and Novice Hunt Seat Equitation, a whole new group of junior exhibitors and enthusiasm has been found.

At the day's end, an overall championship for the rider who had accumulated the most points in any type event was awarded. Friends of the jumping horse were pleased to see Gloria Roberts take the tri-color, and Elizabeth Bell, the reserve, over saddle and western participants.

Mrs. Lally Gagnon, the former MacClay winner who was then Charlotte Hanlon, did an excellent job of judging, giving much needed trials in the horsemanship events. J.A.

Waverly Farm

Mrs. G. S. McIntosh's Waverly Farm, Southern division, closed its winter home in Ojus, Fla., with a horse show and barbecue for the hunter folk on April 18. Since it was late in the season, most of the exhibitors were juniors, but they abounded in number and enthusiasm and a good time was had by all on the oak shaded grounds.

Gloria Roberts made it two championships in a row when she copped the working stake and tri-color over Alice O. Frazer's Teddy Bear. Miss Roberts also won the overall junior rider award with Miss Frazer, reserve. In the green working division, the '58 Christopher Wadsworth trophy winner, Elizabeth Bell, showed her bay mare Blue Bell for the first time and took the title after nice wins in the hack and over fence classes. Newcomer Judy Leeward won the green stake and reserve ribbon on Smoke Puff plus the blue in Beginners' Jumping.

Gayest event of the show was the 40 and over class (riders that is). Audrey Hasler Chesney displayed her MacClay winning form and won the blue on a horse that had had the "stops" all afternoon. The crowd cheered as Eddie Bywaters rode a combination polo and steeplechase seat over the fences to a second place tie. Robert Henry and Dave Frazer also competed in the laugh riot.

Simonetta Bulgarelli rode her grey Furia, to the jumper rosette, with Albert Hubbard Jr. earning reserve on Blitzkreig. Furia is known to Virginians as Freckles and holds the high jump record at Upper-ville.

Waverly has headed for Warrenton, Va. and the Eastern show circuit by now. Floridians have enjoyed their good will and hospitality through the '59 Sunshine Shows. J. A.

Crippled Children's Benefit

Children and Adults held their second State Fair Grounds, Albuquerque, N. M. Under the very capable managership of Mr. and Mrs. R. R. Rothgeb, the show was run off in excellent time with every class well-filled. Ample time was allowed without delaying the show for changes of clothes and equipment which the combined English and western shows of the southwest are eternally plagued with. The courteous and considerate show officials and management made this show a very nice one to attend.

High point hunter or jumper was the veteran Hells Bells capably ridden by his 14-year-old owner Paula Wiseman. This pair incidentally made a very "rare" off-course in the junior jump class to be disqualified.

The open English Pleasure class was virtually one that would make any horseman tremble in his boots with 60 some odd horses, for a horse to even wink at the judge was cause for elimination. It was interesting to note that the class ended up with a Thoroughbred, a Palomino, a Quarter Horse, and Arabian and a half-bred taking the first six places. M. S.

Wissahickon Valley

As widespread ribbons characterize some shows, so monopolies do others, with Wissahickon falling in the latter category. The horses of John Sheldrake Jr., ridden by John and Mrs. Kenneth Winchell, really made their presence felt in the open working, green working and green conformation divisions. His Coq de Fran won three working classes (including the very difficult handy) for the tricolor ahead of the Herberts' Edgewood.

In the green conformation division, Sheldrake's beautifully mannered Sir Guy, though not the best strip horse in the division, sufficiently outperformed his competition for the championship. Reserve was another "manners" horse, Roddy Wanamaker's Good 'N Safe. Cookie Emien's two blues (in 3 classes) in the green working sewed up the tricolor for her Goblin, with the aforementioned Sir Guy crossing divisions to claim the reserve.

Though Herman Shultz's Jumping Jack tried, the best he could do all day in the jumper division was second - each time to Jiggs Baldwin and Jayber who won every open class. A new face on the jumper scene, up from Florida for the summer, is Stephanie Zachar's High Tide who gave evidence of the competition he'll offer the locals this summer.

Frank Harvey took a week off from showing, but not so his little Shadow Tag. With Leslie Lockhart up the mare performed consistently all day to edge out Leslie Wadsworth's Enough Luck by 1/2 point.

Probably the most versatile horse on the grounds was the John Kreishers' Sally K, whose recently ended "vacation" from the show ring has brought favorable results. The pretty grey began the day in the working classes, switched to the open, back again to the working, and soon for the rest of the day, meeting with success in both divisions. Fencepost

Quentin

Beautiful, but chilly weather greeted exhibitors and spectators at the annual Spring Horse Show of the Quentin Riding club, with well over 100 entries competing.

Two hunter classes were on the card, Ann Anderson Hickok's Hill Hawk winning the event for working hunters over the outside course. Unique, owned by Raymond Brinkerhoff, with Pat Dixon in the saddle, captured the hunters under saddle event, and the same combination placed first in the Business and Professional Men's Class for Quentin Riding Club members.

Fourteen good jumpers entered the lists in the first two classes held the opening night, but half of them had gone home before the final event Sunday afternoon.

The knockdown and out, with 14 competing, saw Half-Moon, so-named because of a half-moon of white over his dark brown rump, the victor as being the only horse to make the 9-jump course without a knockdown. The brown gelding is a four-year-old owned by Ralph Kurtz, and was piloted over the bars by George Stricker.

First place in the initial open jumping class went to Big Man, a stunning chestnut owned by Lorraine Sweigart, with Allen Garner in the saddle. The final open class was won by Anthracite, owned by Hill Farm Nursing Home, ridden by Bob Marshall.

Starring in the children's division was Kathy Williams, eleven, of Millarden Farms, who rode ponies of her own, plus horses and ponies owned by Pat and Ellen Dixon. Kathy placed first in children's horsemanship under 12, first in pony hunter hacks, 14.2 and under, riding the Dixon's Whitewood Stinger, and first in ponies 12.2 and under, riding her own Limelight.

The ladies pleasure horse or pony class was a dilly, in that nearly every type of horse was entered - hunters, three and five gaited, walking, western, and part Arabian were among the 25 competitors. The final wind-up saw ribbons pinned on one saddle horse, two hunters, two ponies, and one western. The blue went to Benefactor, a saddle horse owned by Bridge Acres Stables, while second place went to Pat Dixon's Call Royal, with Kathy Williams in the saddle. M.L.S.

Las Vegas National

The First Annual Las Vegas National Horse Show was an extremely successful Show. It was of interest to this observer that the attendance increased with every performance although the Shows were held in the afternoon which made it impossible for those who were working to attend any of the performances.

The Show was well managed by Frank Jordano and it has been announced that in 1960 it will be held indoors in the new Clark County Convention Center, April 20 through April 24. This building has a large seating capacity and will be ideal for this purpose. Congratulations are in order to Mr. H. Lynn Chase, the President, and we will look forward to a bigger and better show next year.

There is little doubt that the main attractions of the Show were the Open Jumper Classes. All of them were held under F.E.I. rules. There was without a doubt a very large increase in interest on the part of the public as the Show progressed for these Classes are easy to understand and therefore invariably increase the interest and the public attendance. The Show was opened each afternoon with a Class for Jumpers which made a total of four F.E.I. Jumper Classes plus an F. E. I. Jumper Stake on Sunday afternoon. The courses were as big as this observer has seen in any horse show ring in this country; nevertheless the performances were outstanding.

The first Jumper Class was won by Artesia Stock Farms' Calico Cat, ridden by J. J. Smith. However, this Class was not won without a jumpoff. Although the course was extremely big there were three clean performances. The winner of the 2nd Jumper Class was All Mio, owned by Jimmy Williams and ridden by Ken Nordstrom. This Class was won by a clean performance and was the only one of the Jumper Classes that was won on the first go around, but the pressure was still there as there were six horses tied for second with only one down apiece. On the following day the Jumper Class was won by Remember Me, owned by Mrs. Anita Brown, and ridden by Barbara Worth. There were five clean performances but these two grand campaigners, Remember Me and Barbara Worth were not to be denied their day in court. Saturday afternoon, the Jumper Class brought out a repeat performance as All Mio was again successful in winning the "blue" although there were six clean performances the first time around and four clean performances in the jumpoff. It was hard to believe the fences could be raised but they were for the Jumper Stake and there were two horses that went clean. The eventual winner was Sitting Pretty, owned and ridden by Jimmy Williams.

In the Conformation Hunter Division, the entries were not as large as some of the other shows but of excellent quality. The bow in this division must go to Hindu Lady, owned and ridden by Linda Benz. This nice young mare was successful in being either first or second in three of her Classes and in the Stake was the winner. The Hunter Stake resulted in many good performances and was a difficult Class to win as the fences were where they should have been and they took an outstanding horse to put on a really smooth performance.

The Working Hunter Classes contained the largest number of horses as some of the Conformation horses also showed in this division. There were many good performances and the horse that was the most consistent was Sky Pilot, owned by Artesia Stock Farm and ridden by J. J. Smith. This horse showed well in almost all of his classes and won the Championship Stake.

This show was very successful with many entries in all divisions. Everyone seems to be looking for a good show at this time of year to start their horses again. It is held indoors in the Cincinnati Gardens, which is a wonderful new building to have a show in. This year they had indoor stabling for the first time.

The Green classes and Junior Hunters were the best filled, but the Conformation and Working had their share as it was a "B" show and horses could be cross entered.

Crusader, the big 17.2 green hunter, owned by Carlotta McGuire of Winnetka, Ill. and ridden by Mrs. Max Bonham, was Green Champion over Longacres Stables Royal Chestnut.

Mysterious, owned by Lauray Farm, Christy Firestone rider, was the busiest horse in the show. She came through in a blaze of glory, and won the Conformation Stake, making her Reserve Conformation horse to the well known Sun Dial, as well as Working Champion over Bob Egan's Blue Monday. This was so close that they had to hack it off.

The Jumper Division was equally close. The Stake was the deciding factor for the Champion, but still there was a tie for Reserve, which they chose to jump off. Max Bonham was Champion with Windsor Castle, while Bob Egan's new green horse, Innkeeper and Kenneth Markiewicz's Rocco jumped off for Reserve and Rocco won.

I am sure that the biggest thrill of the show came for Howard Lewis, the well known popular rider for Mr. Long's Long-acre Stable, when his young 12-year-old boy Tommy, rode Cam's Image to win the Junior Working Hunter Stake. He placed consistently with the mare throughout the show too. It looks as if he is following in his Father's footsteps!

The weather was so nice that this could have been an outdoor show. It was ninety degrees the first two days. A lot of credit is due to all the horse enthusiasts of Cincinnati, who work so hard to put on this show.

Buffalo International

From the weatherman's viewpoint the four days during the Buffalo International were amazing and a bit phenomenal. From the exhibitor's standpoint it was miserable. But the show did go on as all shows do. Rain, cold, and even some snow (this in May) greeted everyone at various intervals. Actually there were fewer entries in some divisions and the most competitive division was no doubt the equitation department. Horses were for the most part from the Rochester and Buffalo area and a glance at the championship awards for hunters and jumpers quickly confirms this fact. For many exhibitors this show is the first of the season with some performances not as polished as they might have been but the program committee had other items to divert the spectators' attention. A colorful Arabian class with typical appointments (we wondered if the beard length was considered) and a calf cutting demonstration and spectator appeal. One calf was curious to see how things looked from the audience viewpoint and climbed up the stairs to join the two legged critters but was asked to leave.

Foxcroft

Miss Charlotte told us that, if we were good, the world would be good to us. We must have been awfully good for, even though rain was predicted, we had a perfect day and a wonderful show! All the classes were well filled, and just about everybody won a ribbon.

In all the 45 years of the Foxcroft Horsemanship a Freshman has never been a Champion. This year Cristy West riding Affable won the Working Hunter Tricolor, and Wilde Black on Grange Con won Junior Champion. Close behind Cristy in the Working Hunter Classes was Nina Stewart's Dorlator. In addition Nina won Miss Charlotte's Trophy for the Best Rider at Foxcroft and the Whitney Trophy for Good Hands. Miss Nina Winthrop, Foxcroft '52, added a second leg to the Davis Challenge Trophy for Alumnae and topped the Green Hunters with her Poetry.

Cahaba Pony Club Jr.

The lovely weather for the Cahaba Pony Club's Junior Horse Show, brought out a large number of entries. Forty-three horses, forty six riders, parents, friends and horse lovers spent an enjoyable day at Mede Cahaba Stables. Lunch was served on the grounds and after dinner three night classes were held. One of these, the Obedience Class, designed as a test for horse and rider, was modeled on a class held last fall at Madison Square Garden. The tricky course required the contestants to jump, circle barrels and halt before the last obstacle. It was won by Francis Dwyer's handsome Copper Dust, ably ridden by Penny Robinson. Copper Dust also took the Hunter Horse Championship. Shadow and Candid - the black and white - both owned by Mede Cahaba Stud, tied for reserve champion hunter in the horse division and a tie breaking class was held for them. Shadow's manners triumphed over Candid's way of going as the judges put them through their paces.

The champion rider of the show was Wendy Morris of Montgomery who took home the challenge trophy given by Mede Cahaba Stable.

Kenneth Hoyle's nice pony Brown Bubbles who also quietly entered the beginners class was the Pony Hunter Champion. The Pony Reserve Champion was Patsy Morrison's consistent Country Girl. Patsy and Country Girl, a fine combination, managed to place in almost all the classes they entered.

The Henry Bergh Trophy, given by the ASPCA in honor of its founder, - a difficult combination of riding over jumps and then answering questions was taken by Ann Windham with Pam Andrews second.

Skidmore College

On the afternoon of May 2nd, Skidmore College held its annual horse school culminating the year's riding activities. The show featured an exhibition by the Bidoons, the college's newly formed drill team, led by Mr. Ralph Symmes. Another highlight of the day was the finals of the class team competition which was won by the senior class on the basis of points accumulated throughout the school year. Two classes were also held for children living in the surrounding area who ride with Mr. Symmes. A fine display of horsemanship was observed throughout the hunter, jumper and equitation classes. The show was well attended and thoroughly enjoyed by both the exhibitors and the spectators. C. S.

Emma Willard Jr.

The first local show day in our area dawned clear and warm, with a grand display of horses and spectators present. There were exhibitors present from Skidmore College, Foxhollow School, Stonebrook Farm, My Play Stables, Misty Hills Stable, Three Sisters Stable and several local entries as well as EWS horses.

Top honors of the day were topped by Judy Hofmann of Smith College with her own bay hunter, Mr. Coker. She took the championship equitation class, as well as the reserve working hunter championship. Mr. Coker also showed well in the FEI classes taking first in one and third in the other. Another Smith College entry, Sue Wolf, took the reserve equitation champ. The hack reserve champ, was Sea Gull owned by Vicky Coleman from Smith College. The champion working hunter was from My Play Stables, Miss Gayle Albertine on her own good going chestnut, Mr. Sandman.

Misty Hills from Troy showed well in the hack division taking a first and a second to win the championship with Misty's Copper Glow ably ridden by Miss Jan Casler. Exhibitor

Eglington Pony Club One-Day Event

Not being a parent my views on children getting soaking wet may be a little out of line but from the sporting point of view it's good to see a spot of rain doesn't dampen youthful spirits. It was more than a spot of rain that fell the day of the One-Day Horse Trials held on May 23rd. The downpour didn't stop them and only one small change was made in the cross-country course, as being too dangerous a slope when slippery.

The damp day doubtless grounded some and it is to be hoped it had no ill effects on competitors and footsters, but it was undoubtedly good experience. Most of the competitors were those that are hoping for a place on the team the Eglinton Branch will be sending to the annual Canadian Inter-Branch Pony Club Rally, June 25 to 28, at Caledonia, Ontario, Broadview

Penn Hall

Two beautiful spring days prevailed as the Penn Hall Riding Club presented its 17th Annual Spring Horse Show. The three intercollegiate teams competing in the event were from The Grier School, Penn State, and Penn Hall. Hunter champion of the show was the big chestnut from Penn Hall, Vo Cross, ridden by Peggy Hall, while the jumper championship went to The Grier School's spunky little horse, Candy Bar, ridden by Jill Barton.

Meriliet Frost of the Penn State Team captured the equitation events, winning both the Advanced on the flat, and advanced over fences.

There was keen competition throughout the entire show, resulting in extremely good horsemanship and sportsmanship on the part of all. N.S.P.

Lake Erie College Point-to-Point

A warm sunny day favored the eighteen horses and riders inaugurating the first point-to-point race held by Lake Erie College on Sunday, May 3rd.

The course, starting at the LEC Morley Farm, wound its way southeast across Mountain Glen Farm to the railroad tracks near Concord Township, and then back again to finish at the Mather Stables, a total of 8 1/2 miles.

Riders departed in pairs at three minute intervals. There were three check points marked by red and white flags where riders had to pick up chips. General directions of the course were marked by orange flags.

The departure in pairs at intervals proved very successful as riders passed check points with precision - like regularity, and still a close and exciting finish was provided between the first three returning teams.

Nearly 200 people in automobiles watched the race from various points along the route.

1. Harmon McBride, Chagrin Valley Hunt, on Venture, and Sian Fredricks, Lake Erie College, on Kim Kam. Their time was 36 minutes.

2. Peter S. Hitchcock, on Mono, and Dr. D. N. Tweeddale on Sparky.

3. Paul David Weaver on #7, and Carol Dickinson on #11.

4. Miss Mary Dana Prescott, riding Black Beth, and Susan Weaver on Little Star.

5. Mrs. Esther Voorhees, on Taffy, and Esther J. Dale, Lake Erie College, on Jumping Jack.

The Busters At Home

Don Henderson

By now you will have come to realize how much painstaking study, time and actual dollars you have expended on your nice string of polo ponies; how much your life has become wrapped up in them. No regrets, rather, a deep satisfaction.

Unbeknownst to you, the day will come when you will be envied as a player identified by his ponies - the greatest of all accolades. You have an intimate appreciation and understanding of every pony and his little foibles - for each has some eccentricity. Such traits endear them to you the more, intimacies that weld your partnership.

Now comes the all-important job of finding a good man who will share your pony secrets - to use an expressive Spanish word, a man who is sympatica. Be warned against a yessir man, who would probably be an old stable hand. He may have your string sleek, fat and leather cleaned to a point of being slippery, but the ponies will lose their level heads. Such a man will be too busy catering to the wishes of the man who holds the purse strings, instead of studying his stock.

Take your time, and go get a young chap who is growing up with using horses - most likely you will find him in the big cow country. Many a father will be glad for his son to have his chance to carry on and advance his study in the world of horses, which he is so fitted for. Such were Hank and Dutch Evinger, both well known in the world of polo; so were Alfred House and Arthur Dewey, though the latter came to us completely green. There are many others. All of them quiet lads who said little, but absorbed all they could digest. These four left Oklahoma to land responsible positions after serving their apprenticeships.

In a nutshell, you want a chap who will tend your ponies as would you, if you did not have to work to keep the pot boiling. You should look forward to coming home to some intelligent discussion of what to do in this or that case.

Gradually teach the lad the finer points of pony training and conditioning. Teach him stable management with everything in its place at all times. No one thing will distinguish you more surely than a cosy tackroom which invites you and your friends to loaf on occasion. There are not many such retreats, most tackrooms are cold, uninviting. When one is found, it is an indication that the stable houses good, well trained and cared for ponies. Teach the lad to keep a neat yard round the unit. A polo stable should be modest, but reflect the orderly habits of the owner - which in turn will be evident in everything, from ponies to playing.

For the early training, ponies do better if held in a corral deep in sand. After their lesson they can go to rolling. This will cool them out and allow them to relax their tensions. During this period shoe them only in front. If the season lacks rains, rub woolfat round the coronary band each day - it will work down between the outer and inner walls and keep the hoof from becoming brittle and cracking.

It is a good trick to work your youngsters in alternately a hackamore and a bocado (which is a rawhide band tied round the lower jaw, commonly used in Argentina). Using both methods, your ponies will respond for flexion, without becoming dependent on one or the other method. Biting is not nearly as important as some would have you believe - just so you don't have to comb the town for a severe bit. When you have to do that, it's time to find a man with a plow who would like to hitch the brute alongside his mule. But if you have learned the Buster lessons well, this will never happen.

Your string is walking quietly to the field. For their first game as a unit; your first too, as a regular player with his own complete string. You pass them on the road, slowing down to look them over with a glow of satisfaction. Your man has enlisted a small boy for leadboy, who rides most likely old Buster, and leads another. You have been by stables to pick up the paraphernalia left ready for you to load. Your man grins with pride - and truth to tell - as Bobby Burns might have said - none of the best laid plans of mice and men have gone a-glee! What a day! You are really in POLO now, in capital letters.

Your string reaches its allotted spot on the pony lines. Your man and his boy dismount quietly and tie in. The ponies settle down as if they'd done this all their lives.

Now your man lays down the white canvas, between the sideboards and where your ponies are hitched. He lays out the kit, just as he has practiced so many times back at stables. Mallets, whip, helmet, thermos of water, clean towel, hoof pick, swipe stick and sponge in the bucket - you look down the line for your lefthanded glove - just then your man reaches into his hip pocket and produces it, placing it alongside the whip - you both grin at each other, and you both know what you are grinning about - he hadn't forgotten that glove! The boy goes to fill the bucket at the nearest faucet, after a little liniment has been poured into it.

So you walk to the other players, who greet you so cordially, congratulating you on the appearance of your string and the evident thought behind your preparations. They come back with you for a closer look, polo players are keenly interested in their fellow players. You are experiencing a tingle, for these men are honest in their praise. You glance at your man, he too is grinning. You are in Polo.

POTOMAC POLO PLAYERS

Among the players who launched the third season of polo of the Potomac Polo Club, Travilah, Maryland, on May 29th, are Frank Willson and Hap Puelicher, high scorers last season; Tommy Dowd, Lt. Col. Marion Smoak, George De-Franceaux, Dr. Jack Kneipp, Dick Moran, Al and Ted Miller, Dr. Fred Hartsock, Harry Beaudouin, Sam Bogley, Cam Smidt, Frank Stallone, Bob Beer, Bernie Sharp, Zeke Ferguson, George Toomey, Bill Malone and Jeff Davis. Cmdr. Bob Monahan currently is on sea duty but is expected back later in the season.

Mahoning Valley Polo Club

The Mahoning Valley Polo Club of Youngstown, Ohio, placed second in the 1958 Chad Johnson Memorial Tournament in Poland, Ohio and hopes to do bigger things this year. The club has some new players coming up and is lining up an experienced sports promoter, who is very much interested in promoting polo for Mahoning Valley. The club has always been ready to participate in games with any team in the area and expects to continue that policy.

Concluding their spring season victoriously, the Virginia Polo Association downed Warrenton, 15-1, Sunday May 31. Led by one-goaler Roger Rinehart with six goals, each of the Virginians played an unusually spectacular game. Hampered by their unfamiliarity with the rubber ball used at Brook Hill Farm and also by a muddy field, Warrenton had bad luck throughout the match.

Rinehart took the opening toss-in and scored almost immediately with a long, powerful forehand. Next Herb Jones, taking a free penalty shot, put the ball in the mouth of the goal and Rinehart slammed in a second point with quick back-the Virginia defense, Hopewell took the ball through the uprights with two minutes to go.

Despite the unbalanced score, the game was an exciting one with good playing by both teams. Several near misses by Warrenton and some unbelievable shots by Virginia were enough to turn the tide. With this fast and violent contest, Virginia earned a season's 4-3 record. Since the opening match in April they have lost to Cambridge University, New York Athletic Club, and Cornell. Victories consist of Myopia, Leesburg, Georgetown, and Warrenton.

Polo will continue throughout the summer months in Charlottesville at Farmington Hunt Club just outside of town. Rinehart, Jones, and Nicoll will make up the nucleus of the summer season team.

hand. Joe Claffey split the uprights for Warrenton as the chukker ended, but a foul had been called and his point was nullified.

Virginia scored in every period using well coordinated team play and hitting their shots with amazing accuracy. Herb Jones, former VMI polo captain who is rated at one goal, drove in four scores for the home team. One of these was from a corner with a nearside backhand shot that crossed the eight yards from post to post before rolling in.

Some of the most spectacular playing of the afternoon was by Doug Nicoll, who came in for the fourth chukker. Riding at a gallop and demonstrating beautiful stick work, he racked up four points in less than four minutes. Don Grubbs, a rising young University student, earned one point for his team and showed a lot of promise in his first game.

Warrenton's only goal was scored in the final period as one-goaler John Hopewell took a fine set-up from Staples, riding at number three. Outmaneuvering

The opening game of the 1959 outdoor season on Leonard Field in Wallingford, Conn., saw the Squadron A trio of Bill Westerlund, Bill Whitehead and Lev Miller edge host Giant Valley of Mount Carmel 8-7. A fine Memorial Day weekend crowd was on hand.

Miller, a former Yale star from Westbury, L.I., was effective at back for the winners in a game which saw the score tied three different times in the final three chukkers. His opposite, Yale coach Al Marenholz, took high individual honors for the day with four goals and narrowly missed tallies in the closing minutes which might have knotted the count.

Marenholz had strong support from Frank (Butch) Butterworth, son of the Yale Polo Association president, who was at No. 1.

The game marked the start of what is expected to be the most ambitious program attempted in the three-year history of the field at Wallingford. Heretofore a brief schedule of three or four games has been followed, but the Butterworths hope to stage at least a half-dozen games on the small, three-man, field this year. A number of new ponies are on hand in the Giant Valley barns.

Chukkers in this game were shortened to five minutes each in order to take less out of the green ponies being played for the first time.

good and so easy. I believe that this has alienated many real friends of racing, who may be a small percentage of the patronage, but who can be very essential at times.

When the NYRA decided to add the 9th race I believe they gave up an opportunity to set a good example to racing all over the country, an opportunity that I know they possessed.

In adding the 9th race I believe the NYRA dealt a real blow to the public relations of all racing, because people all over the country expected something better from an organization sponsored by The Jockey Club.

I believe that sooner or later a sizeable proportion of the New York racing public will come to the conclusion that they are being bled white, not only at night, but now in the daytime as well.

Faithfully yours,
Bayard Tuckerman, Jr.

School For Jockeys

Dear Sir:

It was with great pleasure and a feeling of relief that I read your editorial in the issue of April 24th, re school for jockeys and exercise boys. It is sinful to see how inadequate indeed are the great majority of the help now employed in our racing stables.

I have worked at Belmont and watched how those grooms did stalls, or rubbed a horse or walked him. There were times when I was cooling out some of our horses that I had all I could do not to take the shank out of a hot-walker's hand, and whack him with it.

It is a good thing trainers and owners do not check into how stalls are mucked out (especially when there is no trainer or foreman around); they would be shocked.

Considering the sums of money invested in race horses, and the money paid out to the help, it is still a mystery to me why trainers will hire some of the kind of people they do. They bitterly complain they cannot get good help any more, but they never make a move to remedy the situation.

The art of cooling out horses should be one of the subjects taught at Jockey School when and if one is started. If trainers and owners would only face reality, they would surely see the dire necessity of such a school and immediately.

With the medium at your command, The Chronicle, you can reach even those who do not wish to hear. Keep hammering at the subject, dear Sir, and talk about it to trainers and owners every chance you have. It will, it must bear fruit.

May I make mention also of the article by R. J. Clark re Juvenile Racing. How terribly true it is, and there never was a more fitting epitaph when two-year-olds break down at three than this. Owners and trainers and breeders were in a great campaign to "kill the goose that laid the golden egg."

Where is their foresight; all one hears is pasteboard tracks, exceedingly fast track, still another race for two-year-olds. Were there a plot afoot to destroy racing at its roots, this racing of two-year-olds is certainly a good way of going about it. There is so much that can be said against it, but until owners and trainers see the disaster and destruction of racing potential which is entailed. I suppose they will go blindly on.

Thank you.

Sincerely yours,
N. J. O'Brien

4-H Pony & Horse Show

Dear Sir:

A statewide 4-H Pony and Horse Show will be held at the Maryland State Fair Grounds at Timonium, June 20th starting at 9:30 A.M. Daylight Time. It is hoped that this show will become an annual event and all 4-H'ers are urged to participate and help make it a success. Host Club will be the Western Run 4-H Pony Club, formerly known as the Baltimore County 4-H Pony Club.

Open to 4-H members with pony and horse projects will be Breeding Classes for Registered Shetlands and Crossbreds, Development Classes, Fitting and Showing, and Performance Classes. Performance Classes will be open to any 4-H club member who has an active project of any kind going at this time. There will also be a demonstration showing the development and accomplishments of a Roadster Pony.

Thank you very much,
Very truly yours,

BLUE GRASS SUPER HIGHWAYS

Had federal and Kentucky state highway engineers deliberately set out to damage some of Central Kentucky's largest and most beautiful Thoroughbred farms and to harass the owners, they hardly could have done a more thorough job than they have in locating proposed routes of the north-south and east-west interstate highways across Fayette County.

While it is true that almost any routes selected through the county close to Lexington would involve some acreage devoted to Thoroughbred nurseries, to state that the proposed routes were laid out so as to do a minimum of damage to horse farms seems a strange summation when an access cloverleaf is to be located on both Maine Chance Farm and Hamburg Place, two of the most famous nurseries in the world. Moreover, these interchange areas, which cover many acres of ground, both are located right at the front portion of the two farms, where Maine Chance's front entrance lies along the Newtown Pike and where Hamburg's front gate abuts the Winchester Pike.

According to preliminary maps of the system, other Thoroughbred farms involved include Brookwood, Crestfield, and Hedgewood, the first two, at least, being divided by the highway. It is to be supposed that the fact that the two routes will use the same roadway from a point between the Winchester and Bryan Station Roads to the Georgetown Road is a concession toward limiting the number of farms involved.

It still is to be wondered just how the "limited access" feature which accompanies such super-highways will affect still other farms.

It is not to be supposed that "government" worries overly much about costs, but it would seem that some of the most expensive land in all Central Kentucky is involved in the highway plan. Since Federal approval and rights of way still must be obtained, highway department officials estimate it will be 1960, at least, before any dirt is moved. Is it too late for a complete re-examination of the routes?

NOTES

As the jumping phase of Belmont's meeting came to a close, a questionnaire about the new "pole type" hurdle take-off was circulated among riders and trainers. While incomplete as yet, the great majority seem to favor this innovation.

On Friday, N. S. and H. A. Course Committee members, Raymond G. Woolfe and Sidney Watters, Jr., staked out locations for the jumps at new Aqueduct with Steeplechase Secretary John E. Cooper, John Golden, N. Y. R. A. Tracks Supt., and Dick Strickland, Aqueduct Course Supt.

Because of the scarcity of stalls, most jumpers have left Belmont Park and will be partially stabled at Delaware Park, and the surrounding countryside in the next few weeks.

Montpelier's Benguala and Mrs. Ogden Phipps' Ancestor will be trained for fall steeplechasing at Belmont and Aqueduct. Neji's status is still uncertain, but a fall campaign seems unlikely at this point.

The full complement of twenty jumping races which were scheduled during the Belmont session, were well filled and brought out a better class of young horses than has been the case in quite some time. Brush horses are in short supply, although some of the second year hurdlers are scheduled to make their debut over the bigger fences at Delaware Park and Saratoga.

English Derby

drawn out that little extra if the French horse had got to him.

The success of Sir Humphrey de Trafford was a tremendously popular one, especially after his ill fortune last year. He has already served two full terms as a Steward of the Jockey Club and in every way is the very best type of owner that the Turf can boast. It was also the first Derby success for rider Harry Carr, whose son-in-law is Joe Mercer, who was on Fidalgo, and after the race he jokingly ended his account by saying: "Well, after all, Joe's got lots of time yet, but I haven't".

It was certainly most appropriate that the richest-ever Derby should go to a horse of entirely British blood that was bred by his owner. His dam Lightning is a half-sister by the venerable old patriarch Hyperion to Alcide, and both horses are by stallions of the Blandford male line, Parthia being by Persian Gulf and Alcide by Alycidon. Persian Gulf has already sired a Classic winner in the filly Zabara, but this is his first Classic colt though he had a Derby second in Arabian Night and a 2000 Guineas runner-up in Tamerland. But his best son to date is the Gold cup winner Zarathustra.

Lightning won one stakes race at Ascot at two years and prior to Parthia, who is her second foal, bred the winning filly Media, also by Persian Gulf. Chenille, the dam of Lightning and Alcide, was bought at the 1948 December Sales for 3,100 guineas, being by King Salmon out of Sweet Aloe, a half-sister to Feola, the ancestress of Aureole and Round Table.

PREAKNESS WEATHERVANE

Atop the old clubhouse at Pimlico Race Track there is a weather vane consisting of a jockey sitting on a horse. I don't know which end points into the wind or even if it does move with the wind, but there it is. The jockey always wears the colors and number of the last winner of The Preakness.

In order to keep this thing up to date, Mr. George Dragoo, who paints the winning number and colors on the weather vane, has his ladders and pots of paint strung up on the cupola of the clubhouse a couple of races before The Preakness. As soon as the "official" sign is flashed on the tote board, he starts swinging his paint brush so that almost by the time the horses have come back to be unsaddled, the weather vane wears the colors of the winner as well as his number of the saddle cloth.

Actually, Mr. Dragoo gets a little head start. This year, he went up before the seventh race (The Preakness was the eighth) and painted over the saddle cloth in white, thus blocking out the number eight worn by Tim Tam when he won the big race last year. That gave it time to dry so the number of this year's winner could go up immediately when the winner was declared official.

Before The Preakness, I was up there talking to Mr. Dragoo to find out just how all this works. He had mislaid his program and borrowed mine so he could determine which colors he would be most likely to use. We both figured it wouldn't hurt to have some blue and some white handy. The favorite (1.60 to 1) was Meadow Stable's First Landing (blue & white blocks, blue & white striped sleeves, blue cap). The second favorite (1.70 to 1) was Brookmeade's Sword Dancer (White, royal blue cross sashers, white cap). I don't know how royal Mr. Dragoo's blue was, but he was all ready to use it.

Royal Orbit made the question of whether the paint was royal enough blue or not academic. He won by 4 big lengths. The colors carried by the winner were Red, white circled "B" on back, red cap. His saddle cloth bore the number 6. So that's the way the weather vane will be adorned until I see Mr. Dragoo again next year. I'll borrow HIS program then.

IRISH CLASSIC FOR

*TULYAR'S DAUGHTER

*Tulyar had his most important winner to date when his daughter Fiorentina, owned by all-conquering Aly Khan, beat 18 rivals in the Irish 1000 Guineas on the Curragh.

A severe thunderstorm broke over the course shortly before the race, which had to be postponed for an hour until the water had drained off the track sufficiently for the race to be run.

Fiorentina, who had previously been beaten by only a head in Epsom's rich Princess Elizabeth Stakes, started an even money favorite in the hands of Aly Khan's new Australian jockey, George Moore, but it was only after an exciting duel on the sodden turf that she got home by a neck from Lillet, who was ridden by veteran Charlie Smirke, with whom so many of the Aga Khan's Classic victories were associated. A further short-head away was Clara Bow, a daughter of *Solar Slipper.

Bred by her owner, Fiorentina is out of Leventina, an own-sister to the Two Thousand Guineas winner Palestine, who won four of her six races at two years.

MR. STRASSBURGER CONTINUES

Mrs. Ralph Beaver Strassburger, widow of the well known American horseman, intends to maintain the Haras des Monceaux Stud in Normandy and the racing stable at Chantilly which has been such a factor in French breeding and racing over the past 25 years.

TRAINING STEEPLECHASE RIDERS

Fence Funny Frank, the commuting fox hunter and Master of the Murray Hill hounds, Manhattan's best marked poker pack, watched the riders in Belmont's Spring Maiden Steeplechase being helped aboard their horses. They included Tommy Walsh, Harry Hatcher, Joe Aitcheson, John Cotter, James Murphy, James Walker, Flint Schulhofer and Kenny Field. The weather was hot and bothersome. It was a good day to complain.

"Any o' these guys ever go out an' raise hell?" asked Frank.

"Don't be a square," said Frank's companion. "With the exception of Tommy Walsh, who is too young to escape the eyes of his wise, old Uncle Mickey, these guys are all married. They have kids. They are responsible family types. Most of 'em can get out only when their wives give permission."

"I thought so," said Frank, indignant. "The game ain't what it used to be. I wouldn't be surprised if the whole bunch fell down at the first fence."

"Why?"

"I'll tell you why," said Frank, "They don't know how to train. Remember what Crawford Burton said when he was asked how a gentleman rider trained for the Maryland Hunt Cup race? It was published. 'The only sensible way to train for that crazy thing is on love an' rum,' said Burton. 'That way you don't worry about it.' He knew what he was talkin' about, too. He won it twice."

"In my day," continued Frank, warming to his subject, "they had riders who knew how to train. Guys like Rigan McKinney, Stuart Rose, Jack Skinner, Pete Bostwick, Jim Ryan, Downie Bonsal, Andy Fowler, Bobby Davis, Charley White, Sid Watters and Ray Woolfe. Any one of 'em could stay up all night, dancin' or bettin' on cock fights, and with an 80 minute nap before post time give your horse the jumping ride of the ages."

"If a jump-up rider had trouble stayin' awake in the day time, all he had to do was look around for McKinney. Rigan's sports jackets were so loud he had to detour around Woodlawn Cemetery lest he be accused of announcing a false judgment day like Roy Howard did with the false armistice of World War I.

(Tom O'Reilly in The Morning Telegraph).

CONTRACT RIDERS

Many new riders will be flocking into Waterford Park for the summer racing season. They will include some associated with stables bedded down at the beautiful mile track, with a heavy sprinkling of free lancers. It is interesting to note that the first contract rider in history was John Singleton, born in 1715. Singleton hired himself out to train and ride horses in exchange for meals and the privilege of sleeping in a stable. How times have changed! Today a good rider is capable of earning more than $50,000 a year.

OTTO-OTTO

In a recent race at Cologne-Weidenpesch, Germany, for horses to be ridden by trainers, 63-year-old Otto Schmidt, 14-time German champion jockey during a riding career of 38 years, brought down the house when he rode Gestuet Niederrhein's 4-year-old Nostoc to victory as the crowd shouted his old nickname "Otto-Otto".

PARKER-WOFFORD

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Westa of Bedford, New York, have announced the approaching marriage of Mrs. Westa's daughter, Joan Whittlesey Parker, to Mr. John Gardner Wofford at Balliol College Chapel, Oxford, England, on Sunday, June 21st. Miss Parker is a member of the Golden's Bridge Hunt and is well known in horse show circles in this country.

ANN BRAUN

Ann Braun, The Chronicle's polo correspondent for Connecticut, will leave her New Haven home late in June for Hawaii where she will take summer classes at the University of Hawaii in Honolulu. She was a member of the Southbury Polo Association's all-girl team which played in Squadron A during the winter season. She will return to New Haven in the Fall to start her second year as a member of the Cheshire school system faculty.

THE NORMAN FAMILY

A very serious heart attack last year nearly put out of commission one of the few west Texas fans and admirers of the hunter and jumper, Mr. Jim Norman of Plainview, Texas. When his doctor told him to spend more time at a hobby, Mr. Norman interpreted the orders to mean only one thing - go to the horse shows with his daughter, Carol Ann, Mama? She has to drive the car. ## TIDEWATER HORSE & PONY ASS'N.

The Tidewater Horse & Pony Association, located at Greenbrier Farms, Military Highway, Norfolk, Va., was founded to stimulate interest in horses and ponies in and around the Tidewater area of Virginia. Recently elected officers of the association are: President, Richard B. Spindle III; Vice-President, Bob Esleek; Secretary, Ethel Speers; Treasurer, Everette Hart, Board Members, Gerry Ashburn, Oscar Bryan and W. Floyd. K.C.B.

COMPOUND ACCIDENT

A compound accident occurred in connection with the Devon Horse Show, when the ambulance in which an injured rider was being taken to a hospital collided, and injuries were incurred by another person riding in the ambulance.

Mrs. David T. Kelley, of Armonk, N.Y., suffered a concussion when her horse, Pride's Mark, fell at the bank jump at the show.

When it was decided to take her to the Bryn Mawr hospital Miss Joan Magid, Mamaroneck, N.Y., owner of the horse, rode along with her in the ambulance which collided with an automobile when the first vehicle went through a red light, wailing its siren. While Mrs. Kelley was not injured further, Miss Magid suffered a fractured clavicle and cut lip which required a number of stitches to close. The automobile involved caught fire, and was completely demolished, but the driver was not seriously injured. He was treated at the Bryn Mawr hospital and discharged. The ambulance driver suffered a broken rib, and was hospitalized.

As the show ended both Mrs. Kelley and Miss Magid were reported in satisfactory condition.

In an unusual coincidence, another ambulance based only five miles from the first, also was involved in a crash the same day, but no Devon people were involved. M.L.S.

VIRGINIA TRAIL RIDERS

Mrs. Fletcher Harper was elected Honorary President of the Virginia Trail Riders Association at its annual meeting held in Warrenton on May 21st. Mrs. William Gordon of The Plains was elected to serve as a Steward for two years. To serve three years are Dr. Walter Williams of Upperville, Mrs. J. H. Symington of Leesburg, and Mr. William Wilbur of Warrenton.

The Stewards announced that the 1960 One Hundred Mile Ride will be held on April 11th to 14th at Hot Springs and that the course will be substantially the same as in 1959. They also announced that arrangements had been made with the Bath County Horse Show Association to construct a new forty stall stable, which will be weatherproof. G.C.S.

PAUL MAYO RIDING SHOP

By way of correction to the item concerning the Paul Mayo Riding Shop published in our "In The Country" column, issue of May 29th, we have been asked to publish the following letter which is being circulated throughout the trade by virtue of an order of the Supreme Court of Suffolk County, N.Y., stemming from an action for a dissolution of the partnership instituted by Mr. Mayo.

The firm of Paul Mayo Riding Shop at 15 West 38th Street, New York 18, New York has been dissolved.

This is to announce that Mr. Paul Mayo has entered into the business of boots, breeches, jodhpurs, riding jackets and accessories under the name of Paul Mayo Riding Shop at 76 Smith Street, Freeport, New York (Freeport 9-8472) and at Main Street, Cold Spring Harbor, New York (MYrtle 2-3152).

This will serve further to advise that Mr. Viron is in no way connected with Mr. Mayo in said enterprises.

This is further to advise that Mr. Simon Viron has entered into a similar business at 15 West 38th Street, New York 18, New York (LO 3-4342) and that Mr. Paul Mayo is in no way connected with Mr. Viron in said business.

Cordially yours,
Paul Mayo

*TOMY LEE LEADS IN BRITAIN

The British Sporting Press, elated over *Tomy Lee's win in the Kentucky Derby, points out that he has won more money than any other British-bred horse in history, the equivalent of nearly 260,000 pounds.

EPSOM DERBY DILEMMA

When Sir Humphrey de Trafford's Parthia (Persian Gulf-Lightning, by Hyperion) beat George Oldham's Fidalgo in the recent Epsom Derby, there was one lady at the course faced with a dilemma. Her father, Harry Carr, rode the winner and her husband, Joe Mercer, rode the place horse.

PRINCE SIMON

Prince Simon (*Princequillo-Dancing Dora by *Sir Gallahad III), bred by the late William Woodward, Sr. and exported to England, became the acknowledged 3-year-old champion and was given top weight of 133 lbs. in the 1950 Free Handicap. Returned to this country he proved practically sterile at stud and was given by William Woodward, Jr., five days before his death, to James McHenry, secretary of the Green Spring Valley Hunt. Now 12 years old, Prince Simon is hunted regularly with the Green Spring by Miss Ethel Hoffman who teaches riding at the Garrison Forest school. In an interview with Joe B. Hickey, Jr., Miss Hoffman said: "He is like an old shoe. While it was new to him, he took to jumping extremely well. There were little problems at first - like crossing running water - but his remarkable intelligence and lovely disposition quickly solved them."

DO YOU REMEMBER?

Memories of the past were exchanged when Audrey Hasler Chesney saw Betty Jane Henry at the Waverly Farm Hunter Show in Miami. Mrs. Chesney was the winner of the very first MacClay in the Garden, and Mrs. Henry was also a competitor in that class. After a "do you remember?" conversation, Mrs. Chesney entered the Waverly Show ring, and gave a very polished performance to win the "Oldtimer's Event", with Mrs. Henry's husband Robert, placing third. ## WOLFHOUNDS AND THOROUGHBREDS

Mrs. F. Nagle of Westerlands, Sussex, England, and her friend, Miss Newton Deakin, guests of Mr. and Mrs. Amory L. Haskell, Red Bank, N. J., who recently came to this country to judge the Irish Wolfhound Specialty Class at the Dog Show at the Haskell's Woodland Farm, also visited a number of Thoroughbred breeding farms in New Jersey. Mrs. Nagle has bred, trained and raced Thoroughbreds for over 20 years while Miss Deakin is also a horse owner.

BRITISH DRESSAGE JUDGING

Writing about a recent Horse Trials in England, Col. C. E. G. Hope, editor of "The Light Horse", comments: "The judging of the Intermediate Dressage occupied an inordinate length of time, which was entirely unnecessary and should not have been allowed by the organizers. This reinforces my repeated contention that dressage judges should stand by their first opinions of a test and not hold a post-mortem afterwards. The time to have this conference is before the tests start, when the judges should watch a trial hors concours test, in order to set a standard for themselves. Once they have agreed on this, the rest of the judging should go through as quickly as possible, with no after-thoughts."

PEBBLE BEACH THREE DAY EVENT

The Second Annual Pebble Beach Open Three-Day Event will be held at Pebble Beach, Calif., on June 26, 27 and 28 under the management of Richard D. Collins. The event is open to individuals and teams of either three or four riders and horses. The Dressage Test will be the Pan American 1959 test. Ten bonus points will be given for using a snaffle. The endurance phase will consist of roads and trails, 1.50 miles; steeplechase, 1.25 miles; roads and trails, 3.75 miles; cross-country, 2.75 miles; and final run-in, .75 miles, making a total of 10 miles. The cross country is to be covered at 16.4 miles per hour and the steeplechase phase at 22 miles an hour. The total time elapsed will be 61 minutes and 25 seconds.

Preceding it on June 21st will be the Pebble Beach Summer Dressage Competition including A-3, B-1 and C-1 Tests, Prix St. George and Grand Prix.

NEW YORK TO FLORIDA

Shirley Weinstein came many miles from Bedford Village, N. Y. for two Florida shows, but her long journey was a successful one, result wise. She won reserve green titles with her four year olds Buttermilk Bay and The Artist, and this sand schooling must have helped prepare for spring as Buttermilk Bay was named green champ at The Island Show in West Hempstead recently.

The big bay Artist accomplished an unusual feat for a hunter at the shows. He won the pleasure championship at South Miami over saddle types plus earning all blues and one red in every under saddle class offered, at the events Miss Weinstein covered. J. A.

MISSIE'S WALLOP

The uproar in the U. S. Senate touched off by Clare Boothe Luce's remarks about Senator Wayne Morse, following her confirmation as ambassador to Brazil, in spite of the latter's efforts to block it, actually have a foundation in fact. Mrs. Luce said: "We must now wait until the dirt settles. My difficulties, of course, go back some years when Senator Wayne Morse was kicked in the head by a horse." In 1951, Senator Morse had a string of show horses which he took to a small horse show at Orkney Springs in the Shenandoah Valley of Virginia. He was rubbing down the horses after the show when a mare named Missie kicked him in the jaw and broke it.
